Alma Mater

In the heart of dear old Dixie,
Where the sun doth shine,
There is where our hearts are turning,
Round old Emory's shrine.

CHORUS

We will ever sing thy praises,
Loyal sons and true;
Hail thee now our Alma Mater,
Hail the Gold and Blue.

Tho' the years around thee gather,
Crowned with love and cheer,
Still the memory of old Emory,
Grows to us more dear.

CHORUS

Foreword

This edition of the Emory Campus marks the first Annual published at Emory University. In the past our Annual has been a college publication. We beg the indulgence of our readers as we lacked precedent in producing this book. We present this Campus to the friends of Emory, hoping that it will help to create a greater and wider influence for the University we love so well.

History of the Graduate School

The opening of the present collegiate year witnessed the inauguration of the graduate department of Emory University. With Dr. Theodore H. Jack as Dean, the Graduate School thus entered upon a most auspicious career. If the past is any criterion of the future, Emory University may boast soon of a graduate department which will be second to none in the South.

Our department is fortunate in being able to number among its students six "co-eds," who have the distinction of being the first of their gentle sex to rank as daughters of Emory. Miss C. B. Branham will be signally honored in being the first woman to receive a diploma from Emory University. Our "co-eds" have shown that they are well able to cope with the masculine mind, as well as to attract the masculine attention.

While it is natural for graduate students to feel that they were divorced somewhat from student activities when they received their previous degrees, yet our graduate students have taken a lively part in all phases of college activity. In fact, the Graduate School has had two men this year to bear the title of Chairman of the Student Executive Council. Of these men one left us in November to become a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University, England. The other is still on the campus using his influence to direct student activities along lines that will help to build a great University, and that will create a distinct Emory spirit.

We are proud of Emory, and we hope to conduct ourselves in such a way that Emory will be proud of us.

EMORY COLLEGE
History of the Liberal Arts Student Government

UNTIL a year ago there was in effect at Emory a rather antiquated and somewhat clumsy system of student government. A President and Central Board were the main parts of a government that certainly was not capable of being expanded to meet the requirements of a University connection. But the greatest cause for dissatisfaction with the existing system lay in the ever-present and abounding web of politics that spread over and entangled the whole organization. The cloakrooms of the Capitol and the walls of Tammany Hall know nothing of secret and strange diplomacy when compared with the walks and halls of Oxford. And, furthermore, it was highly evident that a change must come to fit the student body for the move to the seat of the University.

Accordingly a commission, composed of W. B. Sanders, C. K. Bivings, S. M. Matthews, B. F. K. Mullins and W. B. Stubbs, Jr., all of the class of '19, and Robert Flowers, M. L. Greene, and W. E. Rogers, of the class of '20, was appointed to draw up the constitution for the new system of government. When this arduous task was completed the student body voted for ratification unanimously, and the new order went into effect.

A Council for each class, and a Student Council for the whole school, with their officers, form the ruling bodies. An Honor System provides for the maintenance of a code of honesty in the school that makes every man responsible for fairness in the student body. The new system does away with a great deal of the politics that infested the old organization. On the new campus the task of uniting all the schools has proceeded slowly but surely, and the system in force in the academic schools has had a wonderful influence in the shaping of the University Government. Many of the student activities that formerly were only Liberal Arts activities have been taken over by the University system, and the scope of the Liberal Arts government has been decreased. But there is still a great need for the excellent organization of the collegiate school, that this, the heart of the University, may contribute her full measure of support to the making of the Emory Student Government a government that stands for efficient organization and sturdy honor in the student body.

ROLAND P. MACKAY,
Secretary Student Council.

A Marine Sunset

By Charles Bowie Millican, '22

Far o'er the blazened track across the waves,
Which ebb and flow in tireless undulation,
From where the lashed pebbly shore thrusts out
Its sombre arms into the dark'ning roar,
Apollo guides his panting stallions.
The vesper zephyr breathes with soothing breath,
Breathes o'er the Sun-God's wearied glow and cools
The burning path, the foaming steeds.
The radiance of the chariot wanes
And stoops to kiss the spray-caps.
And now 'tis gone, the burnished road. The gold
Into the emerald water mingles.
Fast fade the melting splashes,
And naught remains of all the regal transit
But pinkish lashes of the afterglow
And the green rifts of twilight.
IT IS unnecessary that the history of the Class of '20 be recounted for those who have known us, but for those who come after us we shall leave our record plainly written, that they may make our ideals their ideals and set their standards by the side of our standards—fulfilling with pleasure and honor the duties that shall fall upon them in their college careers. Our accomplishments and our failures are as familiar to those who know us as the spring song of the mocking bird to its mate, or the evening call of the milkmaid to old Bess ringing across the broad expanse of the meadow through which a gentle stream lazily seeks its way to the great waters further on; and to those who do not know us—just a glimpse at the Senior write-ups will tell the story even better than could Roland P. Mackay, himself.

We have taken the lead in all branches of student activities—literary, student government duties, and athletic—since first we set foot on the Emory College campus down in dear old Oxford in the fall of 1916. It became our duty, as the first Senior class of the School of Liberal Arts on the University campus, to organize and foster a sound, democratic, and smoothly running student organization of all the various schools in the University system. How well we have succeeded it were best that you should be the judge.

Our work has been materially hindered by the absence of one of our strongest, most able men—a man of great intellectual ability, moral integrity, and the power to lead men. "Bob" Flowers was liked by all who met him, and to know him was to love him. We have missed him a great deal, but he was determined to finish early and—well, he had notions in his head, and is now a married man.

Many and sweet will be the memories of our college days, and as they are now fast drawing to a close we promise that:

"We will ever sing thy praises,
Loyal sons and true,
Hail thee now our Alma Mater,
Hail the Gold and Blue."

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever." "A good man never dies."

RALPH WALDO BEESON, B. S.
MERIDIAN, MISSISSIPPI

Phi Delta Theta Fraternity; Few Literary Society; Student Meridian College till January, 1920; President Class '17; Secretary Class '19; Varsity Football Team '17, '19; Varsity Basketball Team '18, '19; Entered Emory January, 1920; Track Team '20.

Ralph is a jolly good fellow. Though a new man at Emory he has swiftly and surely made for himself an enviable place in the estimation of his fellow students. Add to that the fact that he is a good athlete, both on the gridiron and on the track, and, in our opinion, you have described a good man.

CHARLES GALLOWAY BOLAND, B. S. MED.
ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Kappa Psi Medical Fraternity; Few Literary Society; Y. M. C. "C. G." is well known and liked. He has been teased quite a bit because of his faculty for arriving at his destination just a bit late, but if he keeps up his hard work he will arrive at success on schedule time.

Grady is one of the best of our students. He is a shark in modern language and math, and has left a good impression with the whole faculty. Besides, he warbles an excellent tenor, and, it is said, enjoys the trips of the Glee Club very much.

PHILLIP EDWARD CHAPPEL, B. A.
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

Non-Fraternity; Y. M. C. A.; Ministerial Association; Few Literary Society; Emory Cadet Corps '17; Tennessee Club; I. P. A.; Glee Club '17.

An elongated physical frame and a friendly nature are the chief characteristics that this young man brings from the hills of Tennessee. No doubt he will make a Billy Sunday some day. Phil's ability to wield a tennis racket is remarkable.

"Hop" is the apostle of good cheer. He is also noted for managerial ability. Aside from the fact that he is business manager of practically everything on the campus, he is reported to be very adept in handling several love affairs at once. He is a much respected man.

No one would accuse "Skinny" of being inattentive to the lure of society. He loves the Social world and some day will make a Vernon Castle, possibly. We feel confident that in after life he will prove a very worth-while person, living up to the traditions of Emory.

Harmon has left an athletic record behind him that youths aspiring to excellence on the gridiron, diamond, and basketball court can strive to equal through many years to come. Many a base runner has died at the keystone sack because of the excellence of his good right arm. But they hold him no grudge, he's too much of an all round sportsman.

Mackay holds a place at Emory that few before him have held and that many in the future will strive to reach. He shoots the professors at will; ranks with the first as a literary genius; has no superior in the debating hall; is a necessity to the Glee Club; is an able, fair-minded, and hard working man in Student Government affairs; is athletic above the average; and is religious without having any air of "put on" about him. We have been informed that he is an Ace among the Ladies, especially of Wesleyan.

L. Richard can strike with a dry wit like a bolt of chain lightning. He is a mighty good pal—a hard working and very successful college man. One feels that it's the time to be free and easy around him. We all like him, because he is one of those men who just make friends anyway. And listen! His poetry would indicate that he is at home when in the sweet presence of some one's fair daughter.

"Quiz" has a wonderful propensity and an astounding ability to pronounce a great deal of his mother tongue. He loves to play with the pretty test tubes and beakers, and to watch the changing color of phenolphthalein. On the whole, he is a good student and a very companionable fellow.

Henry is another man who hopes to dispense diagnoses. At Emory he not only has time to attend Anatomy Lab., but he hands out dopes and books over the college store counter. Really, the little quotation under his name is all that is necessary. But it might be added that his initials spell a well-known and much-needed commodity that some students do not have. "Cy" has that commodity, however, and, added to his good disposition, makes him a most charming and valuable friend.

"Ernie" is a man who has many talents. He has penned passionate love-lyrics; he has held audiences under the sway of his speech; he has exhibited to the world a scintillating wit. If you were seeking a quiet, studious, companionable man, you could go to no one who would fill the bill better than Saunders. He has it on the rest of us inasmuch as he claims to know all about the various and complicated systems with which the fairer sex are wont to use when dealing with us poor men. He is a technician in bacteriology, and doubtless knows the names of many ugly bugs. For our part, we had rather know Saunders than the bugs of his acquaintance.

“Dick” is one of those chaps whose opinion must be asked before it is offered. Furthermore, his opinions are worth asking. "A. B." is one of the few men who are friends of the whole student body. He greets you with a smile, and you cannot help liking both his cheery countenance and his faultless arrangement of masculine attire—for "A. B." is a firm believer in neatness of dress. There seems to be some danger that Cairo and the Wights will gain controlling interest in our beloved Emory. It is not to be doubted that if they all assume as great an authority in the school affairs as "Ed" has acquired, such a possibility will become an imminent probability. We all honor "Ed's" ability, seek for his sage council, admire him for his character, and wish that we could approach him in that much coveted hypnotic influence over the "more deadly" of our species.

There is generally a great clutter and flutter at this time of the year as the leaves that were turned over at the first of the year fall back into their accustomed places.
History of the Junior Class

A MACAULAY or a Gibbon might fittingly be entrusted with the task of writing a history for this greatest Junior Class that the Emory University campus has ever nourished. Or a Homer or a Milton might sing their deeds in epic master-words, and still the subject be worth the labor of these mighty wielders of the pen. However, it will be impossible for those men to undertake the work, so we beg leave to submit a brief and plain unvarnished record of our achievements.

We entered the Promised Land in the fall of 1917, and at once took a prominent part in student activities, beating the Sophomore football team and staging a night-shirt parade that set even Seney Hall clock off into raptures of applause. The rest of the year rolled around at about the same pace, and spring found us enjoying the ecstasy of a Freshman dismissal.

Some had fallen by the wayside when we gathered again in "the melancholy days" of 1918, and even more fell out when the S. A. T. C. disbanded, but new material came in, and we kept up to our old standard. We were the runners-up in basket-ball, but had a little misfortune in our final game with the Freshmen, of which the least said the better. Courses in R. O. T. C., the Lyric, and the City Pharmacy rounded out our year.

Our greatest loss came when our Pre-Meds left us last fall and entered the Medical School, but it was somewhat compensated for by a great number of new men, some back from the wars, others fresh from the wilds of the junior colleges. The other classes said we couldn't put out any kind of a football team, but they realized their mistake after we had beaten them individually, and challenged them—in vain—to combine and see if they could interest us. We put out a track team, and would have had a strong basket-ball team if that game had been played. We have won honors on the athletic field and in the class room—we are fighting a good fight—we are content to call ourselves Emory men and members of the Junior Class of '21.

G. Williams '23
HAVE you ever read a class history that did not contain more accounts of honors, achievements, and successes than of disappointments, and failures? Now, to our minds, a history of anything means a record of all the movements of that thing. Therefore, it is our aim to record all movements of our class so that the public might see just what we are doing as a class. When we reached the old Oxford campus in the fall of 1918, conditions were very unfavorable, for the Government changed the regular college atmosphere into that of a military camp. It was like getting off our marks handicapped. Probably our scholastic records have suffered too much from this inevitable interruption. We believe, however, that we are on our feet at last, and that now our men are proving to be the makings of many great scholars.

With the coming of the new year 1919, there came the return of the old college life. Much more, the boys entered the various school activities, and we as Freshmen set our aims toward winning out in every department. Although we did not win everything we gave the old men a scare that they have not forgotten, for we won the pennants on the basket-ball, baseball and tennis fields. The chances were that we would have won the football pennant also, but as conditions did not permit the playing of football that season, we could not win a pennant on that field. As Sophomores we have been able to win only a loving cup on the athletic field. Our men, however, did not fail to make a considerable number of E's, which, added to those given us as Freshmen, makes a total of some nine or ten letters.

We have not neglected our other fields of opportunity, because we believe that a class should endeavor to enter all fields, thereby giving each man a chance to bring honors to his class. Our men won the prizes for the '18-'19 and '19-'20 Phoenix Essays, and the pages of this magazine have been filled many times by our writers. There are a number of the '22 men on the staff of the weekly publication. Those of our men who have even thought that they had a voice, have gone out for the Glee Club, most of them being granted a place. The Mandolin Club and Orchestra have not been forgotten by us, for we have placed a few men there.

We are not lacking in men of military ability, which is readily seen by the number of men now serving on the R. O. T. C. Officer's Staff. From our ranks came the cadet major, two captains, three first lieutenants, and last but not least came the military genius of our class, our second lieutenant. We also have a great many serving as non-commissioned officers.

It seems that Dame Fortune has failed us with the best of her gifts, yet there are many things that have not been awarded us that we have aspired to attain. Although there are many achievements to our credit, there are a few unpleasant movements that we must acknowledge that were perpetrated by our men. But after all we believe that we have profited by our experiences and console ourselves that we, as Sophomores, believed ourselves to be right. May we not say that we are striving to live lives that will count in the life that we shall enter upon leaving college?

Freshman Class History

The Class of '23 first saw light on October 2, 1919. The first thing impressed upon our minds was the fact that a Sophomore was a thing to be feared, and for several weeks life was one belt-festival after another. However, this outburst of Sophomoric recklessness did not produce any ill results and ere time had long passed our class had become a well-developed and man-sized one with plenty of pep and spirit.

In athletics we have set an enviable record. When the football season opened, we came in with it and were there with the kick in every game. Under the guiding hand of Professor Weld we succeeded in defeating the Sophomores, an achievement most desired by a Freshman. Basket-ball was dispensed with and, consequently, we were unable to demonstrate to the rest of the University just how good we were in the cage game. Track practice was begun rather early, but our class had its quota out, eager to go; and when the big meet was pulled off, we were much in prominence and did our share in helping to put Emory on the map of the athletic world. “In the spring a Freshmen’s fancy lightly turns to baseball,” says some tyro-poet. Well, this statement certainly held true in our case. The minds of the members of our class turned to the national pastime good and strong, and we swatted the old horsehide with a vim from start to finish.

In literary activities we also made a good record. Several men in our class took special delight in “shooting up” the profs. and made A plus’s with just as much ease as falling off a slick log backwards on a dark night. In the literary societies we had men who proved themselves to be able declaimers and keen debaters. In fact, we entered into every important phase of college life.

The Class of '23 set a pace that will be hard for succeeding Freshmen classes to follow.

Camar School of Law
Lamar School of Law

NAMED in honor of the late Mr. Justice L. Q. C. Lamar, of the United States Supreme Court, and a distinguished Georgian, the Lamar School of Law is destined to achieve a great victory in the establishment of a superior scholarship and the building up of a clientele that will measure up to the highest professional ethics and best traditions of the most honored calling of all.

Realizing that men are now persuaded more than ever before by cold facts and convincing logic, the following data is given for the benefit of prospective students of law. The Lamar School has an endowment of $90,000.00, the latest contribution being that made by Judge John S. Candler, which will mean the addition of one full-time professor to the law faculty at the next opening of the school. The Lamar School of Law ranks second amongst legal schools of the South in library facilities, having something over 6,000 volumes, second in endowment and first in physical equipment. There are eight professors connected with the law school, two of these, Dean S. C. Williams and Prof. H. W. Arant, devote all of their time to the work. As was previously stated the opening of the new year will see the addition of one more full-time professor, which will entitle the school to be placed in the category of the American Association of Law Schools. This is an assured fact for '21.

In connection with the regular legal work the students have in operation this year the Williams-Arant Law Club which is given over to discussion of cases under the supervision of the faculty. The Club work will be supervised next year by a member of the faculty, which member will devote his time specifically to this one activity, embodying therein moot court activities. Credit is given for this form of work, as it is the indispensable requisite of a well-trained lawyer. Writing along this line in a letter to the President of the Club under date of February 25th, Judge Candler says, “I am hoping for great things from the Lamar School of Law, and I also hope that the students will organize in such a way as will make a diploma from this school the most valuable one to be had in all the country.” With such words as these from a person who has shown so much interest in the advancement of the law school, the students can’t help but feel inspired.

Williams-Arant Law Club; Chaplain First Year Class '16; Vice-President Senior Class '20.

"W. W." sure has acquired some enviable "rep" while delving in legal lore "about the city of Atlanta." "Hooks"—for that seems to be his official title—has an ability to state hypothetical cases beyond the range of comprehension enjoyed by fellow students and instructing professors. "Hooks" contends that he is going "out West," where competition won't be so strenuous. We just want to throw out one suggestion for the benefit of our friend, for we have a real interest in his future, viz., the vanguard of civilization has gotten beyond "the West," and we really believe "Hooks" will do well to charter a boat and sail for some of the isles of the Pacific.

Harry Letcher Greene, LL. B.
SPARKS, GA.

President Williams-Arant Law Club '20; Emory University Masonic Club; Secretary-Treasurer Senior Class '20; Students Executive Council '20; Baseball Team '20.

Harry, don't "letcher" "green" show when you make your debut in the presence of your constituents. Really it will be disastrous—take it from us—and, besides, it's out of place for a lawyer to show embarrassment. "C. P. O."—for that is what we love to call our "subject" due to fond recollections—has been a diligent worker for the advancement of the interests of the Law School and the University. In recognition of his ability as an executive he was the first man to be elected President of the Williams-Arant Law Club, and under the impetus he has given it, there is no doubt that it will grow from year to year, adding mightily to the prestige of the Lamar School of Law. Harry has the tact of a diplomat, and we feel sure that it will show itself in a more advantageous light as the years roll by, adding more lustre to the day. With best wishes and kindest personal regards.

If our friend, John Franklin, lives up to the record of his namesake he, said John Franklin, will be some barrister. As a ladies' man he has a very enviable record, but we can't help but believe they have taught our friend a very bad habit, viz., a propensity to grow the "tea-hounds" recognition sign—adornment on the upper lip. Keep it up, Kid Terry. It's a great game if you don't weaken.

MISS ELEONORE RAOUL, LL. B.

ATLANTA, GA.

Williams-Arant Law Club; Class Historian '20; Delegate Woman Suffrage Convention, Chicago, '20.

Miss Raoul is the first woman to graduate from the Lamar School of Law and it is whispered that she will be the only one to enjoy this distinct honor and privilege. Georgia, a State that has always been a little backward in granting to woman her just dues, is destined to have a real battling Suffragette to reckon with in the near future. The boys of the Senior Class lay low when prone to condemn the political aspirations of women while the champion is around. Sure do wish you luck, Miss Eleonore.

By Ernest Rogers.

The king lay abed with a fever
Which grew alarmingly high.
"The king is in love," said the people
As they saw his majesty die.

"I can't take your gems," said the bandit,
"I'll soon get you right out of harm;
For you look for the world like my girl
That lives back home, on the farm."

"Take ars'nic and carbolic acid,"
Said the doctor, "three times a day."
For the doc was madly in love
And dreamily went on his way.

"Your hair's as sweet as fried cabbage,"
A plumber inscribed on the wall.
For love was at work with his heart,
And poetry softened the fall.

"I want a pint of blue apples,
A yard and a half of blond bread,
And a marcelled French-fried potato,"
"He's in love," the waiters all said.

"The square of a million is Mary,
And the cube of a thousand is Jane."
For the Prof. had lost his poor heart
Said the pupils, "He's at it again."

Explain this fitful disturbance,
O Merciful One from above;
Enlighten me just a mere trifle
On this wonderful thing we call "LOVE!"

FRESHMAN LAW CLASS
History of the Williams-Arant Law Club

November the first, nineteen hundred and nineteen, there was ushered in a mighty factor—in so far as the training of a lawyer is concerned—in the Lamar School of Law of Emory University. That factor was the Williams-Arant Law Club. Named in honor of two of the school’s leading spirits, Judge Samuel C. Williams and Prof. Herschel W. Arant, the Club is destined to live as long as the school, and its activities will afford opportunities for the training of law students not to be found in any other course offered. Credit is given for all work done under the auspices of the Club and it is the purpose of the faculty to have a regularly appointed professor in charge of this work at the opening of the next scholastic year.

The object of the Club is to promote thinking and acting in a legal way. One of the greatest obstacles to be overcome in training a man for the profession of law is the getting out of his system that lazy and indolent way of acting and thinking so usual to a novice. There is no profession that calls for such accuracy and precision as that called for in the legal. Granting this to be true, and the old adage of practice makes perfect, it is quite apparent that moot court work will go a long way to eliminate the civilian kinks—moot court activities playing no small part in the work of the Club.

Another object of the Club will be the fostering of a spirit of brotherhood amongst the students in the law school. First, second and third year men are members of the Club. In fact every fellow that comes to Emory and studies law becomes a member of the Williams-Arant Law Club the minute he recites on his first case. Being thrown together in a Club meeting means more than is apparent upon first observation. Class-room work cannot be compared to it, for the simple reason that a great deal of it is formal in the class room, whereas it is not in the Club, where just as much freedom is given as is consistent with good training.

Again, it is the purpose of the Club to adopt some pin that will be worn by the members of the Club not only while they are in school but after they leave the halls of their alma mater. Just what this pin will be like is not known as yet, in that one has not been officially adopted.

The 1919-20 year law students consider it a signal honor and privilege, in that they have had the distinction to place on the “go” some such an organization as the Williams-Arant Law Club. On the whole the first year’s try at the new work has been crowned with a success rarely seen in an undertaking of this kind and the foreboding of the future is anything but evil—thanks to the good will and loyalty of men who are destined to accomplish real good and lasting service in this their chosen field.

CANDLER SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY
History of the Theological Department

FIRST on the campus, first in the campus mud, and first in the heart of the country (men), is our history, briefly stated. When the University was established in 1914, the Theological Department was organized and Wesley Memorial Church was selected as the temporary base of operation. Many young adherents of Mr. Wesley from various Southern states presented themselves as patients, also gratuitously giving the school the benefit of their pastoral experience. After looking their patients over, certain learned Doctors of the Faculty agreed that an immediate operation was necessary in order that all impediments which had resulted from traditional complications might be removed. The critical knives were sharpened, deep incisions were made, and bare facts were exposed to the light. The operation was not a painless one, because the method adopted was that which involves OT and NT Introduction without the use of an anesthetic. Some were not able to stand the operation and escaped in a swoon, never again to be decoyed by a doctor of the theological genus; others “fit, bled, and died,” but experiencing a resurrection, they came out “more than conquerers in the end.”

In the fall of 1916, because of the fact that many of the students were placed in a foreign atmosphere and were not accustomed to the noise and sights of the city, it was deemed wise to move the school to its present location, where said students would feel more at home, surrounded by rocks, trees, birds, and animals of the longauris species. Here they have labored without ceasing, many learning early in their seminary career the exegesis of the passage, “If a man desire the office of bishop, he desireth a good work.”

Several of the students have cast themselves upon the matrimonial waters and the others are, according to Methodist phraseology, “groaning so to be.” We have watched with interest the rapid development of the University and have welcomed the other departments to the campus. It was with reluctance that we gave our Dean to become Chancellor of the University, but since it was for the good of the school, our objections were withdrawn. If we were not modest and refrained from the appearance of conceit, we would say that our student body represents the highest type of Southern young manhood. The Theological Department readily co-operates with the other schools in any movement which is for the best interest of the University.

F. M. Gaines,
Secretary Theological Student Body.
Take up thy cross and follow Me.

Senior
History of the Senior Class

Another stage of the journey done; perhaps the most hazardous portion of the way. A period of dogmatic doubts and doctrinal difficulties; when men’s minds tangentially fly off after every heretical novelty; when the growing consciousness of the magnitude of the Infinite brings man to despair; when the choice is to be made between traditionalism and modern scholarship. Yet, thanks to the safe guidance which has been ours, we have, with the exception of that small number who refused to unburden themselves of this onerous traditionalism, come through “safe and sound.”

And here, this breathing spell offers an opportunity to review the history we have made; true, a fragment merely of the total history that is to be, but a period full of interest to the thirty men of the class of ’20.

With representatives from ten Southern states and one far Eastern country, twenty-four different colleges, men from nearly every walk of life, farmers, school teachers, book agents, millionaires, etc.; with its many types of the “genus homo,” homely men and handsome men, fat men and lean men, bald men and bushy men, (et cetera ad infinitum), the present graduating class can well boast of its varied personalities, varied in individual traits, varied in experience, but one in purpose.

Since the removal of the School of Liberal Arts to our campus, the Class of ’20, and indeed the whole Theological School, has made its every contribution to the perfection of a frictionless student organization. It stands as one for anything that promises to promote the welfare of Emory.

When the reveille sounded in 1917, six of our men volunteered their services; of these six, three were commissioned lieutenants, and of these three, one saw service in France.

The records show that many of our men were leaders during their college days; leaders in scholarship and in student activities of every sort. No less enviable has the record been at Emory.

Now, the period of preparation over, we are anxious to enter the field of actual service. Tomorrow we go out with the same characteristic unison of purpose, as exponents “of the will that can.”

Wesley Davis, Historian.
EMORY CAMPUS 1920

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Dykes, C. H. - Pres.

Everett, C. - Sec-Treas.

Heddon, W. - Asst.
Charles Foster Allen, Certificate
BOWLING GREEN, KY.

Center College; Member Louisville Conference; one year pastoral work in Atlanta; finish in Spring Term.

Charles hails from the Blue Grass region of Kentucky, but he is neither pretty nor fast. He came to Emory with firm determination to get theological training and he has succeeded to that end. He has won many friends at Emory and those who know him love him.

Fred Amacher, Certificate
BELVIDERE, TENN.

M. T. N. State Normal; University of South; Member Tennessee Conference; finish in Spring Term.

When Fred left Emory in 1918 he was one, but realizing the need of an associate pastor, he is now two. He believes that character speaks louder than words and acts accordingly.
Arthur Olin Baggarly, B. D.
BARNESVILLE, GA.

B. Ph. Emory College; Member North Georgia Conference; finish in Summer Term.
Diversity, thou art a gem incarnated in the loquacious Baggarly! Arthur is a man of experience, having helped his Uncle Sam with his mail, sold books, taught school, was a census enumerator, chief expatiator of the Interchurch World Movement and has found some time to be a "theolog" occasionally since 1916. His text before Dr. Sledd will doubtless be, "Lo, I am with you always."

Harvey Chester Brown, B. D.
CAMP HILL, ALA.

A. B. Birmingham College; Y. M. C. A.; Andrew Sledd Literary Society; Delegate to Des Moines Convention; Alabama Club; finish in Fall Term.
Harvey minds his own business with an efficiency the envy of all. A bit hard to know at first, but to those who know him best he is a prince among men.
John Lovett Carter, Certificate
VANCLEAVE, MISS.
Seashore Camp Ground School; Student Pastor of Marvin Church; finish in Fall Term.
For good nature Carter leads the list among the students of the Theological School. He claims that the fever is responsible for his bald head, but take this with a grain of salt, knowing as we do, that John is a married man. Carter enjoys the friendship of the Faculty and the entire student body. He is a good student and has made a fine record at Emory.

Willard Wardsworth Cash, Certificate
AUSTELL, GA.
A. B. Young Harris College; University of Tennessee; Member North Georgia Conference; Pastor of Austell; finish in Spring Term.
Cash excites admiration by his earnest efforts and unfailing devotion to his work. He has ability to surmount any obstacle and rise above every difficulty.
EDGAR BOGUE CLAPP, CERTIFICATE
BILTMORE, N. C.
Weaverville College; Andrew Sledd Literary Society; North Carolina Club; finish in Fall Term.

A "dyed in the wool" Tar Heel, hailing from Biltmore. Before "Edwin" became a minister he had ambition to enter high society in his home town. Now that he is fast approaching the meridian of life, his ambitions are shifting from society to politics. He is a staunch supporter of the League of Nations and thinks the Senate is a bunch of ivory domed blockers of the world's best interests, for not approving the document in toto. Clapp is a hard worker and is one deserving the highest praise.

CLYDE COLUMBUS CLARK, B. D.
HATTIESBURG, MISS.

A. B. Millsaps College; President Andrew Sledd Literary Society; Chairman Student Volunteer Band; Y. M. C. A.; finish in Spring Term.

Clark has come to be looked upon as a fixture on the campus. If he succeeds in his chosen profession like he has in his former days selling "pots and pans" we predict for him a bright future. Columbus, with the same dare-devil spirit which characterized his forefather of 1492 fame, has bravely launched out on the storm-tossed sea of matrimony. Clark is blessed with an abundance of hard, common sense.
WESLEY CLIFTON DAVIS, B. D.
BOLINGBROKE, GA.

B. A. Emory College; Treasurer Theological Department; Historian Senior Class; Masonic Club; Andrew Sledd Literary Society; Young Harris Club; Theological Representative on University Student Council; finish in Spring Term.

Wesley "shoots 'em up" to an "A" every "pop." There is not a better student on the campus. Modest, unassuming and agreeable, he has made many friends among the students; and with his keen mind has drawn favorable comment from the Faculty. He seems to have to exert no unusual effort to maintain his excellent standard of scholarship. We predict that Georgia Methodism will find a bulwark of strength in this tireless worker. "Persistent people begin their success where others end in failure."

ROBERT MORRISETTE ENGLISH, CERTIFICATE
ELISKA, ALA.

Southern University; Y. M. C. A.; finish in Winter Term.

The persistent and industrious "Ieh" deserves much praise for his work in school. For almost three years he toiled and refrained from entering the realms of society. But alas! Like all embryonic Presiding Elders he "flopped" and now his motto is, "I have as much right to receive a daily pink 'sugar report' as anybody."
John William Fizer. Certificate
BEDFORD, VA.
Randolph-Macon Academy; Vanderbilt University; Missionary Evangelist of Virginia Conference; finish in Spring Term.

Fizer has the distinction of being called grandpa among the Theological students. To one unacquainted with the personnel of the student body, John, with his silken gray locks, would easily pass for the Chancellor of the University. For some mysterious reason Fizer has chosen to avoid any entangling alliances with the opposite sex, though we think he is not altogether out of danger of cupid's arrows. He is a fine student and a successful preacher. No one who knows him has any fear for the future of this man.

Florence M. Gaines, B. D.
HARTWELL, GA.

B. A. Emory College; Secretary Theological Department; Treasurer Andrew Sledd Literary Society; Chairman Intercollegiate Debate Council; University Student Council 1918-1919; Y. M. C. A.; finish in Spring Term.

One of the few men on the campus who is fortunate enough to be the favorite of the students of all the schools of the University. Gaines possesses the very rare quality of being able to make men of every kind and profession feel absolutely free and easy in his company. Perhaps dry wit accounts partly for his popularity. Florence is a typical exponent of the so-called parlor joke. He is an excellent student, a fine thinker and a charming personality. A bright future awaits this man of such rare gifts.
JOHN PENDLETON GAINES, CERTIFICATE
BROOKSVILLE, FLA.

Millsaps College; Columbia College (Florida); Emory and Henry College; Corresponding Secretary Andrew Sledd Literary Society; Secretary to Chancellor; President Emory Unit Bible Class; finish in Fall Term.

John is the most illustrious class-mate on the campus. His wide and varied experience as a circuit rider has put him in a position of influence and authority. He is seen in print quite often, but is better known by word of mouth. He has been active in the organization and promotion of spiritual forces on the campus.

ANTHONY HEARN, B. D.
CLAXTON, GA.

Mercer University; Emory College B. A. in December, 1920; P† Kappa Phi Fraternity; Y. M. C. A.; Andrew Sledd Literary Society; Junior Preacher in Smyrna Charge; finish in Fall Term.

To find a more congenial fellow than Hearn would be difficult. A man who couples hard work with genius and as a result makes a fine record in whatever he undertakes. Once or twice he has been known to hide behind a cloud of words in painful attempts to answer entangling interrogations propounded by the learned "Profs." He is liked by all who know him. Certainly every one will grant that Anthony Hearn possesses the qualities which will insure his success as a minister.
JESSE H. HOBBS, CERTIFICATE
PRINCE GEORGE, VA.

Randolph-Macon College; Member Virginia Conference; Y. M. C. A.; Andrew Sledd Literary Society; Theological Quartet; Delegate to Des Moines Convention; Virginia Club; finish in Fall Term.

Jesse glories in his friendship, and measured by this standard his wealth mounts to the skies. Pleasing and affectionate in his personality, he impresses his associates as a man distinctly worth while.

GERALD RAY JORDAN, B. D.
KINSTON, N. C.

A. R. Trinity College; Kappa Alpha Fraternity; President Y. M. C. A.; Treasurer American Legion; Delegate Blue Ridge Convention; Delegate Des Moines Convention; finish in Fall Term.

Ray "is right!" He is as brilliant as the rays which emanate from the summer sun, and is a systematic student, a clear thinker, and a forceful speaker. However, he is youthful in his appearance, but Father Time may overcome this handicap for him.
Oscar Daniel Langston, B. D.
WARREN, ARK.

University of Arkansas; A. B. Hendrix College; Member North Arkansas Conference; University Glee Club; Masonic Club; Quartette; Arkansas Club; finish in Spring Term.

According to the principles of Elisha's succession, Langston received the mantle as it fell from Orpheus. He left a "high-steepled" church in Arkansas and now his voice blends in harmony in the Emory Glee Club. He is a man of an imposing personality and a dauntless and enthusiastic spirit.

Doo Wha Lim, B. D.
PING YANG, KOREA

B. Ph, Emory College; Theological Representative University Council '18-'19; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; Delegate to Des Moines Convention; Secretary University Student Volunteer Band; Treasurer City Student Volunteer Union; President Cosmopolitan Club; Theological Representative on Annual Staff; Dining Hall Committee; Secretary Andrew Sledd Literary Society; finish in Spring Term.

Time was when Doo Wha was a ladies' man; now he has cut out all such secular activities and is giving himself wholly to work more needful in attaining his Dip. He is one of our best "all-round men." He will some day put Korea on the map.
Osee A. Marrs, Certificate
DYER, TENN.

A. B. Laneview College; Member Memphis Conference; Student Pastor of Epworth Church; finish in Winter Term.

Some call him "Baldy," some call him "B. C." But he's all right. His jovial nature has won him scores of friends. In addition to his Theological work he's rating most acceptably the pulpit of Epworth Church. Those who have patience to hear him through say he's a "pretty fair" preacher.

David Thomas Morrison, Certificate
CENTERVILLE, TENN.

Peabody College; Delegate to Des Moines Convention; Y. M. C. A.; Andrew Sledd Literary Society; finish in Summer Term.

Here's a theologian: One who can explain clearly and concisely what is meant by "election conditioned on the foreknowledge of faith." Dave's an ex-Y. M. C. A. man, a phrenologist of some note, a likeable fellow.
Plennie C. Oliver, B. D.
LANETT, ALA.

A. B. Kingswood College; Member North Alabama Conference; Student Pastor in Atlanta and Tuscaloosa, Ala.; finish in Summer Term.

He's little, but he's loud. He goes back to Alabama at the end of this term to take a "circuit." Men of his type never fail.

J. Marvin Perryman, Certificate
PELLYTON, KY.

Lindsey Wilson Training School; Member Louisville Conference; Student Pastor for two years Lakewood Heights; finish in Summer Term.

Here is another loud one. If you don't believe it, hear him preach before Dr. Sledd. And you won't have to go to the class room of preaching to hear him: anywhere will do, the library, log cabin, Tom Pitts'. Jake is a busy man; he preaches to a full house twice every Sunday, passes off his school work, visits his parishioners every Monday, and takes in every illustrated lecture. Represent a table on the dining hall committee, acts as President of the Ananias Club.
Walter O. Phillips, Certificate
VERBENA, ALA.
Southern University; Member Alabama Conference; Director of Music Wesley Memorial Church; finish in Summer Term.
It is said that "The Globe" is considering making "Walt" the president of that concern. In the last year he has sold more trousers than any man in Atlanta. Then, too, he's Choir Master at Wesley Memorial, and—can carry a tune pretty well. These are his side lines, where he shines most is as a student.

Raymond Trichett Ross, B. D.
OKOLONA, ARK.
A. B. Hendrix College; Student Volunteer; Delegate to Des Moines Convention; President Georgia State Student Volunteer Union; Arkansas Club; finish in Spring Term.
"Lucy" intends to make his influence felt in some foreign field. In his sojourn on the campus he has been a leader in student volunteer work, not only among his associates but throughout the State of Georgia. His efforts are characterized by an earnestness and zeal which should make him a power in the field of his choice.
Ransom Eugene Rutland, Certificate
AUBURN, ALA.

Alabama Polytechnic Institute; President and Manager of Emory Players; Presenting Dramatization of Book of Job in 1917; Y. M. C. A.; Critic Andrew Sledd Literary Society; Theological Representative on Committee for Intercollegiate Athletics; American Legion; Delegate to Prohibition Meeting in Macon, 1917; Member North Georgia Conference; Student Pastor; finish in Fall Term.

What "Randolph" can't do, can't be did. He's taught, and came out safe; he's preached even in the mountains of Union County, and thrrove; he's helping to direct the Interchurch World Movement in Georgia and is laying by much "Kale," preparatory to his next year's work as a circuit rider. Then, you know there will be two.

Floyd Bunyan Shelton, B. D.
DELMOOD, N. C.

Member Holston Conference; finish in Summer Term.

Floyd came to us from Emory and Henry, after having cooped all the honors given at that institution. He has made an excellent record as a theolog in spite of the fact that a greater part of his time has been given to "correspondence" work. That far-away dreamy look appears only when the 4-cent pink envelope fails to come. Shelton has unusual ability and bids fair to be one of North Carolina's best preachers.
EMORY 1920 CAMPUS

Marion Lofton Smith, B. D.

A. B. Kingswood College; Member North Alabama Conference; President Senior Class; Fellowship in Greek; Pastor Walker Street Church; finish B. D. in Spring term; A. M. in Fall Term.

"Lof" is a school teacher, preacher and student all at the same time. He brought a splendid record to Emory and he has kept it unstained by a zeal that is commendable. Few men have more friends among their fellow students than does Lofton. It would be nothing less than a reflection on our pseudo-prophetic ability should we predict less than a place of leadership in the Methodist Church for him. "Few things are impossible to diligence and ability."

Marvin Loami Smith, B. D.

Johnston, S. C.

A. B. Wofford College; Secretary of Junior Class; Andrew Sledd Literary Society Chaplain; American Legion; Married; finish in Spring Term.

Big-hearted "Slimy" hails from the vicinity of "cat fish" creek somewhere in the Carolinas. He speaks twice without thinking once and reservations are never offered. He often argues for argument's sake. Marvin is a good student with all the qualities necessary to make an excellent minister. His motto: "Let us not attempt to do anything ourselves without assistance."
HENRY LANFORD TATE, B. D.
GARLAND, ALA.

A. B. Southern University; Member Alabama Conference; Y. M. C. A.; Alabama Club; Andrew Sledd Literary Society; finish in Winter Term.

Henry is our most resourceful class-mate. We know of nothing he can not do. It will be bliss for the woman of his choice when she discovers the full extent of his abilities as a house-keeper. He has been able to make a good record in his class work and at the same time to render valuable service in Epworth League work not only in Atlanta but throughout the States of Georgia and Alabama.

JESSE WARWICK, CERTIFICATE
ATHENS, GA.

A. B. Young Harris College; Member Andrew Sledd Literary Society; Young Harris Social Club; finish in Fall Term.

"Jess" is indeed the only one of his kind. He carries his end of the stick without much fuss. Jesse excels in sling the "o'd hull" at a "hundred per" clip and making himself felt at the table. The interrogations of the "Profs." are met with countless volleys of bird shot; his motto is, "Never fail to shoot." Warwick has the art of making friends and leading them where others fail. He will be universally admired wherever he goes.
MIDDLE YEAR

Those who survive the first year become members of the Holy Club.
History of the Class of 1921

To properly set forth the history of the Middle Year Class would necessitate the writing of the careers of its individual members, for which space is not allowed nor does time permit. One has only to glance at the writeups alongside each picture to discover the facts about each. For the Historian there is a need to consider the underlying causes which make the history of the class great and interpret these to his readers.

These men have come to the Theological School from various colleges of the South. Some, indeed, have been out of college for a number of years engaged in teaching and preaching. These are no bunch of youngsters who do not know what they are about. Battles have been fought by them before. Five of the number enlisted to fight in the recent war and all received honorable discharges, even Private Douglas, although he threatened to beat up a "Shavetail" because the latter wanted "Hardboiled" to play the bootblack. To further show their worth and ability three of the older-looking ones have been successful to get for themselves what God thought was indispensable to Adam. They have set before the rest of the class a fatherly example. In the form of W. O. Lindsay, a "ridgerunner" from Tennessee, we claim the tallest man in school, while our good-natured postmaster, S. A. Swindell, is the largest.

These examples of special notice could be multiplied. The meaning of it all is this: as these men have made history before coming here and are making records now, so are they to continue to do so when the world is faced again. Theirs is a spirit undaunted and a faith unafraid.

Now young gentlemen, if you live through it, you will be all right.

Crossing the quick sands.
History of the Theological Class of 1922

ANY, many years ago Thomas Carlyle, or somebody else, said that “History is but the biography of great men.” In its modernized, Emoryized version, this ancient definition would read, “History is but the biography of forty-one great men, for there are only forty-one men in the class of 1922. But what follows can not be a history, and for three reasons. First, young theologs are as jealous of their past as an old maid is of her age; second, “Safety First” prevents the historian from disclosing any secrets; and, third, each page in this annual costs $3.00, and greenbacks are about as easy to get at Emory as intercollegiate athletics. Realizing that diaries are far more popular in Atlanta than book shops, the following diary is offered for your (dis)approval.

SEPTEMBER 30—Freshmen once more.

OCTOBER 2—The Famous Triumvirate (N. T. I., O. T. I., and C. H. I.), appears upon the scene.

OCTOBER 18—Rain ad finitissimum. Mud ad (censored, but you know).

OCTOBER 25—Tiglath Pileser, Ashurbanipal, and other notables arrive.

NOVEMBER 15—Thunderous roar of exams is heard in the distance.

NOVEMBER 27—Jordan’s watch was fast. He reached Music Class fully two minutes before roll call.

DECEMBER 18—General Examinatus versus General Cram.

DECEMBER 24—Dr. Shelton sent to Egypt for more information about Old Testament history. He found that Bryan and Logan knew more about that subject than himself.

JANUARY 1—Thomas stated a certain young lady took him out to dinner on New Year’s day, but she failed to “pop the question.” Cruel woman!

JANUARY 8—Douglas elected secretary of the Song Birds. (See January 29.)

JANUARY 12—Bennett—“If you had received as sweet a letter as I did this morning, you wouldn’t want another one for a week.”

Moseley—“Shucks, if you had received as sour a letter as I did, you never would want another one.”

JANUARY 19—Stradley, Rushing & Co. gave an impromptu entertainment in the lobby of Winship.

JANUARY 22—The election of class officers resulted as follows: President, Pitts; Vice-President, Hoyle; Secretary and Treasurer, Hamlet; Historian, Thomas; Prophet, Porter; Bullshevist, Stradley; Mascot, Crutcher.

JANUARY 29—Douglas resigns as secretary of the Song Birds, ill health being the reason assigned.

FEBRUARY 2—Gaines showed remarkable familiarity with Matt. 5:39. He turned the left cheek all right, but it happened to be the other fellow’s.

Devoted Friend and Instructor, this Book is Gratefully
Dedicated by the Senior Medical Class of 1920
Senior Class History

LITTLE need be said about the present Senior Medical Class; if you have been hereabouts for any length of time, you know about the Class; if not, wait on the future.

The origin of the species might be of interest to some. There are men among us from all corners of the globe—Egypt, Korea, the United States, and Pavo, Georgia. From the different sections have come men of different types, each in some way bearing testimony to a common ancestry in the near or distant past.

We were loathe to use the words “new past,” fearing their meaning would be misinterpreted by some. However, even a casual observing anthropologist might find some highly suggestive data concerning the missing links if he would loaf around and pay attention to all that he saw and heard. There are several men in the class who, by peculiarities of appearance and constant garrulous questioning, are prima facie evidence, of human origin from arboreal ancestry. All others bear more or less direct evidence, depending upon what section of the world they immigrated. It is a significant fact to be noted that the nearer we approach Perry, Georgia, the more accurate is the conformation to the original type, and we predict that in a few years after returning to his native habitat our friend from Perry will undergo a retrogressive mental metamorphosis, despite the marvelous record he has made since appearing in Atlanta four years ago.

But laying all joking aside, since our class first assembled at the Atlanta Medical College, in 1916, the years have been filled with happy associations, both among ourselves and with the members of the faculty. I would like to make this history a brief resume of our four years together, but only a beginning could be made in the space allotted. The pictures to follow bear witness more eloquent than could be depicted in words, and in the years to come each face will be a silent voice speaking as with a trumpet of our four years of pleasure and happiness together.

This record would not be complete should it close without calling the attention of each member of our class to the peculiar responsibility resting upon him at this time as he receives the degree of Doctor of Medicine. By a special Act of Congress we have been allowed to complete four years of uninterrupted study, years during which our nation has been in the throes of war and to which millions of our friends have been called from their homes and occupations, thousands never to return again. The policy was wise, but the enforced inactivity was chafing to every true American. Though the war has ended, the need for men is more urgent than ever. Let us go back to our chosen communities, determined to honor our profession and serve mankind as truly as those who so nobly and willingly gave their lives upon the battlefield.

To the men who have so faithfully given their services to us during our four years at Emory, we pledge our friendship. To our Alma Mater we pledge fidelity and bestow upon her our best wishes.
EMORY CAMPUS

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS
Frank Miller Atkins, A. B., M. D.
HEFLIN, ALA.

Born October 20th, 1894. A. B. from University of Alabama in 1915; Chemist for Sloss-Shelby Iron Co. 1915-16. Emory 1916-20; President of Senior Class 1920; Junior Interne, St. Joseph's Infirmary, since January, 1919; Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity; Alpha Kappa Kappa Medical Fraternity.

Frank, so called by Stewart R., but known more familiarly as "Tommy" by his classmates, is one of the most popular men at Emory. The query has often been heard as to whether any good thing could come out of Alabama. The question is still unanswered even to those who know Tommy. However, he has made an enviable record at Emory and stands high in the estimation of both Faculty and students. It must be admitted that he has a personality and a mind that bid high to make for him a record in his chosen profession.

William Pope Baker, M. D.
ATLANTA, GA.

Born 1893, Zebulon, Ga. Took Pre-Medical Work at University of Georgia; Emory Medical College 1916-20; Kappa Sigma Fraternity; Phi Chi Medical Fraternity.

Baker, our "Wee little boy with a tousled head," otherwise known as "Nagouchi," was destined to make a great success in medicine until the eventful day of his marriage. There is still some hope that he will make a good laboratory man. Pediatrics may find in him a progressive leader, as many hours are spent daily in calculating formulae for Little Baker, Jr., and his interest in this work is rivaled only by the length of his nightly vigils.
GOODMAN BARE, M. D.
WAGONER, N. C.

Born November 16, 1895, Wagoner, N. C. Pre-Medical Work at Elon College, Elon, N. C.; Emory College of Medicine, 1916-20.

Goodman Bare—the man whose word is law. To get a new theory on any subject just mention said subject to Goodman. It matters not the levity or profundity of the topic; immediately his face wrinkles from chin to glabella and his mouth extends from the external auditory meatus on the right to like chamber on the left. We listen with rapt attention after viewing such extensive preparation, but in vain. Nevertheless, success lies easily within his grasp.

CHARLES SUMMEE BRITT, M. D.
STONE MOUNTAIN, GA.

Born August 2nd, 1897, Stone Mountain, Ga. Pre-Medical Work at University of Georgia; Emory College of Medicine 1916-20; Kappa Psi Medical Fraternity.

We are in doubt as to what should be said about Summey. Were it not for the results left in his wake, his presence would go unnoted. He is an earnest worker, who defends his rights, but bothers not the business of another. He never boasts of what he knows, but “silence has its weight.” He is proud of Stone Mountain, and it is probable that his characteristic silence is drawn from the rock-ribbed fastness of his nativity. May his success be as portentious as the majesty of Stone Mountain.
J. Frank Brown, M. D.
LENOX, GA.

Born January 22nd, 1892. Graduate of Georgia Normal College and Business Institute, Douglas, Va.; Pre-Medical Work at Emory College, Oxford, Ga.; Emory Medical Department since 1916.

Brown, whose memory ever will be a source of pleasure to his classmates, has been the life of the present class since its first assemblage back in 1916. He believes in a good time, and carries out his belief. There is no silence when he is around. If Brown remains in Georgia to practice medicine, fortune will favor his every effort; but if he returns to Lenox—Good-night! May this timely warning keep him off the rocks.

Henry Thomas Burns, B. S., M. D.
GROVANIA, GA.

B. S. University of Georgia 1916; Medical Department University of Georgia 1916-19; Emory Medical College 1919-20; Chi Zeta Chi Medical Fraternity.

"Bobby" came to us at the close of his Junior year from the University of Georgia, and his greatest delight is to recount the delightful times which he had at Augusta. He tells of the wonderful professors of Anatomy and Physiology there, and the ease with which the boys made D's. But Burns is there "Johnny on the spot" all the time, and we believe he will open the eyes of the people around Maysville by the masterly way in which he treats trypanosomiasis, Kala Aza, and Leishmanis Donovania.
Rom S. Butt, M. D.
BAKERSVILLE, N. C.

Born March 29th, 1890, Marion, N. C. Rutherford College 1906-'09; Emory and Henry 1915-'16; Emory University Medical School 1916-'20; Married Miss Beatrice McKinney August 4th, 1916.

To mention the name of "Bubber" Butt calls up forced recollections: a popular and lovable boy, good hearted, a faithful crap shooter, and last but not least, married. "Bubber" came to us to learn something of medicine after he had practiced the art of healing for five years in the Blue Ridge or Rocky Mountains, which we were never able to find out. He has always been a man who loves to spend his evenings at home. Occasionally he got as far as the Gray Clinic upon the pretext of going to Ward III. When asked about his vigorous health, he says, "I owe it all to Hart's Elixer."

George Hull Camp, B. S., M. D.
SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI.

Born October 4th, 1893, Springfield, Mo. B. S. Westminster College; Emory College of Medicine 1916-'20; Married Nov. 13th, 1918; Phi Delta Theta Fraternity; Chi Zeta Chi Medical Fraternity.

During the first and second years of George's sojourn amongst us he was considered one of the most stable and reliable boys in school, roaming as he did with Red Elkins, closely associated with Kendall, and often in company with Chee and Wiggins. Time is the arbiter of all questions. To-day—well, it is too often true that the good deeds done are forgotten and our faults perpetuated, so we will try to think of George as we knew him in the early days, and forget the present. It is hoped that when he goes back home to her and little George, Jr., there will be a retrogressive metamorphosis to his former self.
William Robert Cate, A. B., M. D.
HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

Born December 7th, 1893, Rumsly, Ky. A. B. from Kentucky Wesleyan College 1916; Emory College of Medicine 1916-20; Charter Member of Students' Council, Emory University; Editor Medical Book V; Member of Asclepius Honorary Fraternity; Alpha Kappa Kappa Medical Fraternity.

Cate, alias Bill, from HoPtown, Ky., objects to having an "s" attached to his name, stating that so far he is still single. He has been called the Class Moralist, but it is suggested in certain circles that his resignation should be demanded because of unforeseen complicating circumstances. "Bill" has been running a close race for first honors in the class, and has always proved himself a hard student. Though connected for several years with entangling alliances at home, he early realized the truth of the statement: "Do right and fear no man, write not and fear no woman." He is now free and success is his to attain.

C. D. Cater, M. D.
PERRY, GA.

Born February 1st, 1897. Perry High School 1914; Grove Institute 1914-15; Pre-Med. Emory College 1915-16; Emory Medical College 1916; Freshman Class Historian; Junior Vice-President; Senior Secretary-Treasurer; Charter Member Student Council; has served as Junior Interne at Home for Incurables, Davis-Fischer Sanatorium, and St. Joseph's Infirmary; Kappa Alpha Fraternity; Alpha Kappa Kappa Medical Fraternity.

"Dune," as he is dubbed by his class-mates, hails from Perry, Ga. He has been our Christian adviser for the past four years. Our parents are greatly indebted to him for keeping us out of African Golf games and similar forms of amusement. He never takes a hand in games of chance, and often can be seen lecturing to students on "taking a chance"—1 to 55, 5 and 10 free. "Dune" is one of the most popular boys in our class, and has as many girls as A's on final exam reports.
Robert B. Chastain, Ph. G., M. D.
CALHOUN, GA.

Born February 4th, 1894, Calhoun, Ga. Graduate Chicago Institute of Pharmacy; Pre-Medical work at Emory College, Oxford, Ga.; Emory University College of Medicine, 1916-20.

The two most constant things about “Chubby” are his weight and periodic sickness. “Chubby” attributes the beginning of his chronic adiposity to the Freshman work, which was a year of great mirth and fun, especially while in the anatomical department. Some may mistake “Chubby” for a Bishop, and many have gone so far as even to call him “Bish” to his face. But the whole thing is a great mistake, and due apologies are made. “Chubby” will some day win fame in the field of science, most probably doing bacteriological research work.

James Gordon Daves, M. D.
ADDISON, ALA.

Born November 24th, 1891. Finished State High School at Double Springs, Ala., in 1915; Pre-Medical Work at the University of Tennessee; Emory University College of Medicine 1916-20.

Gordon belongs to that great throng of married men of the Senior Class. He came to us a quiet, peaceful student, and remained as such until one eventful day. Since that day he has become a night owl, often pacing the floor carrying his burden with him, repenting at leisure the marriage committed in haste. He named him Gordon, Jr., for he looks just like his daddy. Gordon has spent many hours working on trial formulae, and learning things babies should know. We expect Gordon to present some excellent papers on the aforesaid subjects.
Tom Forest Davenport, M. D.
FAIRBURN, GA.

Born at Fairburn, Ga., December 16th, 1895. Webb School, Bell Buckle, Tenn., 1913-14; Graduate Fairburn High School, 1915; Pre-Medical Class Emory 1915-16; Emory Medical Department since 1916; Class Editor 1918.

Tom is known as Forest to his fellow students. Why he should prefer Forest to Tom is hard to understand, unless it be that the latter is connected with some evil association of his earlier days. Forest is a wonderful whistler and singer. Just start a tune when around him, and hear the echo. If he will do as well in imitating his instructor, great things are in store for him. Tom has made a fine record in college, considering the fact that his attention has been divided between medicine and his extensive banking interests. A house divided against itself can not stand; his bank busted. May he take heed and give more time to his chosen profession.

Dan Collier Elkin, A. B., M. D.
LANCASTER, KY.

Born March 26, 1894, Louisville, Ky. Graduate of Phillips Andover, Class 1912, and Yale, 1916; Emory College of Medicine 1916-20; Member of Asclepius Honorary Fraternity; Chi Zeta Chi Medical Fraternity.

Dan, sometimes known as the Elder Janeway, is a great fellow. His red head does not bespeak a fiery temper; in fact, such an exhibition has never been seen. It is a case where mind is master over things material. He has achieved the highest scholastic record of his class, and well deserves the honor. We predict that medical science will find a faithful student and investigator in our friend Dan.
Erle Herbert Floyd, M. D.
ATLANTA, GA.
Born February 3rd, 1896, Atlanta, Ga. Pre-Medical work at University of Georgia; Emory College of Medicine 1916-'20; Junior Class Historian; Junior Interne at Grady Hospital 1919-20; Kappa Psi Medical Fraternity.

"Hank" has been prognosticated the leading gynecologist in Atlanta, the city of his nativity. How often have members of the visiting staff of the hospital been chagrined when visiting the wards to have patients refuse their treatment, stating that "Dr. Floyd is my doctor." His pep and interest in his work are only two of the many good qualities which bespeak a life of achievements for him.

Abilio S. Guiamaraes, M. D.
ATLANTA, GA.
Born August 8th, 1892, at New Bedford, Mass. Pre-Medical work at Emory College, Oxford, Ga.; Emory University College of Medicine, 1916-20.

Guiamaraes is a name that has never been pronounced correctly by anyone except its owner, and with such varying degrees of accent by him that it is never recognized as the same name. For convenience we will call him "Gimmy," to which name he has learned ere now to respond with celerity. The most regular thing about "Gimmy" is his irregularity. It would be strange indeed if he should respond to one roll call on time, and it is to be feared that such tardiness will result disastrously in the "end." He is a keen student, however, which makes us predict for him success in the future.
William Howard Hailey, M. D.
HARTWELL, GA.

Pre-Med at Emory 1914-15; Freshman Medico 1915-16; Mexican Border 1916-17; Re-Entered Medical College 1917; Member of Asclepius Honorary Fraternity; President Junior Class 1918-19; Judiciary Committee Senior Class; Kappa Psi Medical Fraternity.

Here's to Hailey, of Mexican fame, destined some day to rival Edgar in the field of obstetrics. Howard piloted the present class when Juniors, and made a much-beloved President. His presence has ever been an asset to his friends, though at times he has shown a weakness for the opposite sex, such faults must be forgotten. We wish him greatest happiness with the girl back home, and highest success in the science of healing.

Fouad Hilmy Hanna, M. D.
LAKELAND, FLA.

Born September 7th, 1889, at Assiout, Egypt. Pre-Medical Work at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., and Stetson University, DeLand, Fla.; Emory University College of Medicine, 1916-20.

Hanna, a strange composition of Egyptian court life and American Democracy, is even more remarkable for his mixture of osteopathy and the science of medicine. Although a graduate osteopath, he soon realized that it requires more than mechanical adjustment through the art of back scratching to cure a sick person, so he left the fair city of Lakeland to pursue the healing Serpent through the vicissitudes of four long years at Emory. Success has attended his efforts. He has proved a walking questionnaire, said questions being little understood by himself and always beyond his listeners. How strange are the workings of the Sahara mind!
WALLACE W. HARVEY, M. D.
JAKIN, GA.

Pre-Medical and Freshman Medical Work at University of Georgia; Emory College of Medicine 1917-20; now Junior Interne at Piedmont Sanatorium; Kappa Psi Medical Fraternity.

Harvey, coming into our midst a year late, nevertheless dropped into place like an old line boss, and has kept things stirring since. University of Georgia's loss was our gain. Harvey is quiet, but, oh, boy, how the ladies do fall for him! Great achievements are within his grasp, and we expect to hear from him later.

EUGENE HICKS HULL, M. D.
CENTRAL, GA.

Born April 27, 1897, Central, Ga. Premedical work at Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky.; Emory Medical Department 1916-20; Kappa Psi Medical Fraternity.

It is not often that we see a Cadaver; much less often do we see one walking about by his own efforts. But in "Cadaver" Hull we have an exception to the rule. "Cadaver" is very fond of joy riding and generally carries his blanket along to keep off the penetrating rays of the watchful moon. A man of such keen forethought and wisdom is bound to make a success of whatever he undertakes.
JOHN THOMAS KING, PH. G., M. D.
PAVO, GA.

Born March 1st, 1895, Lawrenceville, Ga. Graduate of Southern College of Pharmacy; Pre-Med Emory College, Oxford, Ga.; Emory College of Medicine 1916-20; President of Freshman Class; Senior Art Editor; Junior Interne Wesley Memorial Hospital since January, 1919; Alpha Kappa Kappa Medical Fraternity.

John, oh, my son, John, how often have you foolishly purchased a new silk shirt, vainly attempting to catch the unsuspecting eye of some fair damsel! It is a known fact that John has silk shirts enough to match each day in the year, representing all known colors and combinations of same. Each shirt has a meaning all its own, best not discussed in these pages. Success will be yours, old boy, if you pursue your medical work as you have silk haberdashery.

BYRON KOO, M. D.
PING YANG, KOREA.

Born April, 1894. Public School, Honolulu, Hawaii; Pre-Medical Work at Emory College 1915-1916; Emory College of Medicine 1916-20; Sophomore Class Historian; Interne at Roberts' Clinic, 1919.

Byron, otherwise known as "Boullion," is our friend from Korea, and is one who demands and deserves admiration. He has been a hard student since his advent into the medical field, and, though handicapped by a limited knowledge of English, has maintained a high standard of efficiency throughout. Koo will shortly return to Korea and in him we see a future leader and healer among his people. Emory can well be proud to have such a representative in a foreign country, and we, as classmates, will remember our associations with him with pleasure.
Archibald S. McMahan, M. D.
PIEDMONT, S. C.

Born May 9th, 1893, Piedmont, S. C. Pre-Med Clemson College; Freshman Medico Emory 1915; spent 1915-16 chasing fortune; Re-Entered Emory 1917.
Archibald can be pronounced correctly only by the original, so do not attempt it. The immortal "Mac," of proud Scotch-Irish ancestry, is in a class all by himself. He is informed upon every question, from the New York Stock Market to the number of loop-the-loops a spirochete of Pallida must make from its point of entry to its final destination. McMahan is a financier without the financial requirements. He has delved into many business ventures with varying degrees of success, but we feel sure that his final decision to study medicine will be a great benefit to humanity and a pleasure to himself.

William Thomas Tennant, Jr., M. D.
ROANOKE, ALA.

Born October 31, 1894, Roanoke, Ala. Pre-Medical Work at Howard College, Birmingham, Ala.; First and Second Years Medical Work at Mobile, Ala.; Third and Fourth Years at Emory College of Medicine; Junior Interne at St. Joseph's Infirmary 1919, and Davis-Fischer Sanatorium 1919-'20; Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity; Phi Chi Medical Fraternity.
It is with pleasure that Sir William Thomas is introduced to the readers of this book. Count yourself unfortunate if you have never seen his genial face; yea, doubly unfortunate if you have not heard his melodious voice; yea, even ignorant of the wisdom of his questions and answers you have never heard. As Tennant has no intention of transcribing his wisdom upon the written page, ours is the loss, as we must so soon part. May his accomplishments far exceed the fondest expectations of his many friends.
EMMETT LAVENDER TISINGER, M. D.
CARROLLTON, GA.

Born at Bowdon, Ga., March 22, 1894. Graduate of Fifth District A. & M., Monroe, Ga., 1914; Pre-Medical and Freshman Medical Work at University of Georgia; Emory 1917-'20; Junior Interne at the Atlanta Hospital since 1919; Kappa Psi Medical Fraternity.

"Tip" knows a good thing when he sees it, therefore his transfer to Emory in 1917. Although it seemed that fate was going to keep him from graduating on scheduled time, because of serious illnesses, he is now riding the high waves of Seniority, and will soon attain the coveted goal. "Tip" is a quiet fellow, but his silence is his strength. Great things are expected of him even though he came to us from the University of Georgia. Lavender may be his middle name, but he's gonna paint Carrollton red when he gets there.

HOMER S. TITSHAW, B. S., M. D.
HOSCHTON, GA.

Attended Martin Institute; B. S. from University of Georgia; Honorary Diploma from the Demosthenian Literary Society; President of Demosthenian Literary Society; Alpha Kappa Kappa Medical Fraternity.

For some inexplicable reason Titshaw would not state the date of his birth, even though special request was made for this information. However, judging from his looks, "Scotti" is about thirty-five. His absent mindedness would uphold this conjecture. Recently the traffic officer at Five Points led "Scotti" to a point of safety from the middle of the street, where he was found reading an open book, his life in momentary peril. We are glad that "Scotti" was snatched from death by a timely hand, and hope that fortune thus will ever smile on him.
Seab Arnold Tuck, M. D.
LOGANSVILLE, GA.
Born December 21, 1896, Logansville, Ga. Pre-Med. at University of Georgia 1915-16; Emory Medical College 1916-'20; Married Miss Estelle Still June 15th, 1919.
Tuck, the "Sleeping Beauty," is a character of rare antiquity. For him the daily cycle of twenty-four hours is divided into two periods—a time to eat and a time to sleep. All else that happens is as a dream, with an occasional night-mare when so rudely and thoughtlessly awakened by an observing professor. Surely so ardent a worshipper of Morpheus will be rewarded some day for his fidelity and great accomplishments be accredited to his name.

William Leonard Vickers, M. D.
TIFTON, GA.
Born August 13, 1894. Pre-Medical Work at Emory College, Oxford, Ga.; Emory University College of Medicine 1916-20; Junior Interne at Grady Hospital 1919; Vice-President Senior Class; Kappa Psi Medical Fraternity.
Many men are born into this world very homely and remain so. In this case we have an exception to the rule, for Leonard is a "pretty boy" and the girls are simply wild about him. But it pains us to say that Leonard cares nothing about them, and is even greatly annoyed by the pretty smiles of so many girls when they look into his grand countenance. But Leonard is a great fellow, and will achieve success in whatever he undertakes.
At Dawning

W. Powell Jones, '21

The dawn creeps out to meet the day,
How pale and dim her coat of gray!
And then so quick that flash of red,
Methinks the night in fear has fled!

Transformed in beauty stands each tree,
Whose emerald leaves so velvety
Reach out to grasp, though newly born,
The blue of Heaven, the crimson morn.

A flash of wings, a chirp, "Good cheer!"
And then a clarion call, "Come here!"
A card'nal fair with flaming crest
Thus greets his mate with bold behest.

A thousand jewels sparkle gay;
The brooklet winds its murmuring way;
A wisp of smoke; a lifting mist;
A day in spring, by dewdrops kissed.
History of the Junior Class

As classes come and go, each is proclaimed by its adherents as "the best ever," and each year we hear that the height of college achievement has been reached; all of which is pardonable, to say the least of it. Loyalty is universally recognized and appreciated as a gem of purest ray. Not upon any partisan spirit, however, do we as members of the class of 1921 base our claims to greatness. Far from it. "For by their works ye shall know them."

Incredible as it may seem, we were once a legion of more or less lusty Freshmen. To our formidable array of intellectual and physical talent, cities, villages, and isolated farms contributed, and in the fall of 1917 we assembled on the campus to battle the powers that be. We consisted of long boys and short boys, boys who wore glasses and boys who wore suspenders, boys who were married and boys who worked for a living, worldly wise boys and excellent plow boys, with the common aim to make history for ourselves and for Emory.

As we look back over the years gone by, we realize that we have passed over many rough roads, for we have had all that was coming to us. Sometimes we have attended classes and sometimes we haven't. Some of us have pursued knowledge and some have absorbed it. Some of us have a strangle hold on it, while some have only "made a pass" at it. Be that as it may, we are still here and we hope to be here until we are handed our rewards of merit.

Our relations with the faculty may have been at times a little strained, but surely this was because they misconstrued our motives. Some of us have even gone so far as to go to sleep in class to avoid appearing restless. We sincerely hope that this little paragraph will clear up any little misunderstandings that have existed between us heretofore.

We have in our class forty-seven men and one young lady, namely, "Sister" Harwell. We also have with us such dignitaries and notables as Doctors Welsh, Babcock, Blalock, and Crichton. We stand alone in having candidates for the Dean's chair, Harwell and Blalock, who are seen daily becoming acquainted with the duties of that office. We have other prospects for great men in our class, but their success has not become so evident as yet. So, taking us as a whole, we think we should have some consideration.

We realize that not all of us have sounded the depths of the perennial springs from which the philosophers drink, but thanks to natural endowments, coupled with the well-known process of absorption, we are confident that the intellectual status of the race will receive a decided boost upon our advent into the realm of action. For we have come to Emory, seen things, and gloriously conquered.

Summer Skies Are Azure

By Roland P. Mackay, '20.

The summer skies are azure, and the silken, fleeting sails
Of a heavenly flotilla glide before the gentle gales;
A million merry blossoms, in the green and shady vales,
Bring a throbbing to my bosom as a song that laughs and wails.

The long and winding valleys of a Dixie mountain land,
Like lanes that lead to glory, beckon with a luring hand;
A softly singing river, like a silver, silver band,
Invites my soul to wander on its long and gleaming strand.

The summer skies are azure, and the words of love are true,
And sentences are spoken when the world contains but two.
Oh, let me, let me linger underneath the bending blue,
Where life is like a melody that sings itself anew.

But things there are that happen that are ugly, that abound,
And I am growing colder with each spring that rolls around;
The facts of life outnumber all its fancies, I have found,
And thorns as well as daisies may be nurtured by the ground.

The summer skies are azure, yes, and life and love are new,
And I pray my God in heaven, with an honest soul and true,
That he keep my heart responsive to the beauties of the blue,
While life is like a melody that sings itself anew.

On Seas of Circumstance

By George N. MacDonell, '22

Upon the black seas of Circumstance
My tossing bark adventurous rolls,
Its hull of oak, its heart of steel,
Its sails of strongest folds.

With each high wave that hits the prow
Its tall masts seem to pierce the sky,
It sinks to deep despondent depths,
With each wave passing by.

Downward the hurricane may swoop,
Bearing my craft before the tide;
The spray may drench its tattered sails,
And waves its groaning hull divide.

Though the bleak winds of Circumstance
May drive my venturous bark about,
There's not a wind that blows the sea
FRESHMAN MED
NUMEROUS men in various parts of the Southland heard the call of Asclepius in the year 1919. Asclepius's call was heard, in some cases by the students themselves, while in others by their parents. In both cases we have the same result, for, on September 30, fifty-seven men started working as they little dreamed they ever would. We admit, and time and the Sophomores bear out the statement, that our Class is the best, both in numbers and in scholarship, that Emory University School of Medicine has ever known.

Since September we have been working hard, so hard in fact that many a Freshman has said he would advise no one save his worst enemy to begin the study of medicine. This work has brought with it an increased sense of personal responsibility. No longer is it necessary for a faculty meeting in order to have that most wished for delicacy of a Freshman's life, a holiday. Due to custom and precedent, two laws as strong in America as any Federal law, only a majority vote of the class is necessary to create a lawful holiday if some such event as the County Fair takes place.

Happiness and joy are not absolutely denied the Freshman Medical Students, however. Every man has found time for movies and theaters, and numerous fair damsels of Atlanta are familiar with the perfume used only by Freshman Medical Students. Joy reigns unconfined when some luckless literary student comes into the Freshman's Hades (the Anatomy room) in the absence of an instructor. Again we have an exhibition of precedent, for precedent decrees that his pockets shall be filled with flesh, yea, human flesh, while in many instances this man is chased all over the room, followed by liver or any other portion of the human anatomy which could be tossed easily.

With all our pleasures, however, we must not forget our faults, for, as one of our professors recently told us, we are prone to sleep through lectures. He claims to have found men asleep on the liver, and even on the stomach bed. Some claim this is a mark of progress, for the Juniors have become adepts at sleeping through lectures, and are said to be outclassed only by the Seniors.

We are nearing the end of our first year, and some of us will soon claim to be one-fourth doctor. We have learned many things, the main one being how little we do know or can hope to know. Our determination is to become sometime in the future, doctors worthy of the name.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES
Emory University Student Government Association

A HISTORY of Emory University at this time is necessarily brief. Inasmuch as this is the first year in which all of the schools have been located on the same campus, a unified spirit is just now being manifest.

The University was founded in 1914. In September of this year the School of Theology was formally opened. The Atlanta Medical College was made, in May, 1915, the School of Medicine of Emory University. The first session of the Lamar School of Law began September 25, 1916. In February, 1919, by authority of the Board of Trustees a Graduate School and a School of Economics and Business Administration were organized. In the fall of 1919 the School of Liberal Arts was removed from Oxford, and the total enrollment for the University approximated 650 men. The past six years have been full of distractions to the college man. The war called, and the record of service shows how Emory responded. Naturally, the work of organization was delayed on this account.

This has been a crucial year, one full of disappointments and some triumphs, but it is a formative period necessary in the life of a great University. We have caught a vision of the Emory that is to be, and the men are inspired with the determination to strive onward and upward to better things.

Moths
By Ernest Rogers
(“A painted woman cried over the body of John Jones, who was shot in a drunken brawl . . .”)—Newspaper Item.

Dead—in the midst of a life misspent,
Alone in the whirl of the things that meant
Pain to his heart—to his mind, content—
He finished life unafraid.
Lost in the friends of a better day,
When youth and money had had their way,
He crept unknown in the dark to pay
The debt so long unpaid.

His mind aflame with a dim desire
To free his soul from a fiendish fire,
He had met the force of a power higher,
And vengeance, strong, without name.
And none save the woman of paint and show
Had shed one tear of honest woe
As this wasted body, unclaimed, must go
To the earth from whence it came.

L’Envoi
And the giddy moths, as their motions slow,
Dash headlong into the flame.

Alpha Epsilon Upsilon

Alpha Epsilon Upsilon is an honorary Society, of which the membership is dependent upon a high degree of scholastic attainment and upon high standards of character. Students who have made an average of 8.8 for a period of eight terms in the University, or who have made an average of 9.4 for five terms, are eligible for election at the end of the winter term of their Junior, or Senior, year. Membership, however, is restricted to one-fifth of each collegiate class. Elections are held at the annual meetings in March or April. The object of the Society is to promote and reward scholarship among the undergraduates as well as to aid in the development of the University.

"Asklepios" is a non-secret medical honor society, membership in which is based entirely upon scholarship, moral qualifications being satisfactory. It has the definite mission of encouraging high ideals of thought and action in the school of medicine, to promote the best in professional practice, and to encourage medical research. But one-fifth of the membership of the Senior Class may be elected; and only one-half of this number may be elected from the Junior Class at the end of the first semester of the Junior year.

The Non-Fraternity Council is a central representative body elected from and by the Non-Fraternity men of the school. The purpose of the Council, as set forward when it was organized, is to become a factor working for "Unity for Emory." It aims to be a force that shall unify the Non-Fraternity men and help them to become of worth to the University. Furthermore, this Council has for one of its purposes the representation of its constituency in any negotiations that may be necessary between the Non-Fraternity men and other sections of the student body. It is not organized, and its members are not elected, to act in a political way, and it has not acted in such a manner in the past. That the Non-Fraternity Council may, in the future, use all its influence and power to make of every man with whom it has to deal a strong and able factor working for the good of Emory is the hope and purpose of all who are on or who may be on the Council.

R. K. Smathers, better known as "Track," is Director of Track and Gymnastic exercises at Emory. He is the first Coach at Emory to be elected by the Board of Trustees. He is a hard worker and one who is fighting hard for a Greater Emory and Intercollegiate athletics.

J. B. Peebles, known as "Bullet" on account of his machine-gun tactics in the class-room, is Varsity Football Coach. He is very popular with the students, who recognize him for the man that he is.

E. K. Turner, a former star baseball player, is well versed in the intricacies of the great national game. He is University Baseball Coach and has charge of the selection of the Varsity team, from which the letter men are picked. Familiarly known as "Zeke" to the students.
The appointment of a Coach in the person of R. K. Smathers, a graduate of Trinity College, was quite an innovation in the athletic circles of the University, as it has not been customary hitherto to employ a regular Coach for athletics. By action of the Board of Trustees, Smathers now holds the office of Director of Athletics and Gymnasium for the University.

With the return of the men from the Christmas holidays, real work was begun. All candidates were required to sign a pledge, obligating themselves to observe regular hours and habits. Training tables for the men were set up at the dining hall.

McFadden of the Junior Class is Manager of the Track team, while W. P. Watkins, of the Sophomore Class, heads its destinies as Captain. Both men are hard workers, veterans of the cinder path, and will show up to good advantage in the distance events.

The track teams of pre-war days which Emory put forth were a credit to the blue and gold. A good showing in track circles in 1920 will be a big boost for the University in the fight for greater things.

Football

Starting off with a rush in the opening game of the season when they downed the Sophomores by the narrow margin of one point, the Junior aggregation of pigskin chasers was never headed and finished the season as undefeated champions of the Emory inter-class league for the season of 1919. The Juniors had the best team of the year by far, and their victories were clearly the result of superior playing. Under the tutelage of Prof. N. A. Goodyear, they developed a style of attack which proved irresistible to their opponents.

Due to a lack of men the Seniors were unable to put out a team, and the battle for the bunting was limited to the Junior, Sophomore and Freshmen elevens. Some first-class material was developed in the hectic contests which were staged amidst the mud and slush of the new athletic field. Judging by the brand of football displayed by some of the stellar performers, there is every reason to believe that they would show up to good advantage in intercollegiate competition.

The climax of the season was reached when the squad of 1919 "E" men tackled an aggregation made up of old "E" men and players from the class teams. After a frenzied struggle the Bolshevik forces were downed by a count of 21-0.

Since Emory is not allowed to put out a team in Southern intercollegiate circles, each year a mythical all-Emory squad is chosen from the players as representing the pick of football talent in school and these men are awarded a letter by the Athletic Association: Rustin, Varsity Captain; Partin, Turner, Emmett, Pittman, Weinkle, Watkins, Griffin, "Dick" Lester, Stokes, Clegg, and Fleming Lester were the lucky ones this year. They were undoubtedly the most consistent performers in school and their selection occasioned universal satisfaction.
J. W. Rustin, Byron, Ga., Backfield. "Johnny" holds the honor of captaining both the Junior championship aggregation of 1919 and the All-Emory team picked by the coaches as the twelve best players in school. He was a big factor in the Junior victories. His ability to plow through the apposing lines often supplied the punch needed to carry the ball over for touchdown.

R. N. Emmett, Americus, Ga., Line. "Tub" was the bulwark of the Junior line, both on the offense and defense. He opened up holes for his backs to plow through almost at will. On the defense he was a terror to the opposing linemen, breaking through and cutting down the runner unerringly. "Tub" puts all he has into every play.

J. L. Partain, Reidsville, Ga., Backfield. "Leo" is his middle name and right well does he deserve that monicker, for he is a born fighter, especially on the gridiron, where his uncanny ability to skip through an open field won many a first down for his team.

W. T. Turner, Meridian, Miss., Backfield. This lad from Meridian made good from the first at Emory, especially on the football field. He was a hard man to stop, once he got started, and his long runs contributed much to his team's success.
J. L. Pittman, Fitzgerald, Ga., Backfield. “Pitt’s” prowess as an athlete is not confined to the cinder paths. He used his Mercurian talents to good advantage on the gridiron, especially on his long end runs when he skirted his opponent’s flanks for good gains.

W. P. Watkins, Jr., Memphis, Tenn., Line. Watkins played a rattling good game on right end for the Sophomores. He is fast on getting down the field under punts and a sure tackler. His ability to grab the pigskin out of the air on long forward passes was a source of much worry to the other teams.

I. Weinkle, Atlanta, Ga., Line. This year marked Weinkle’s first appearance in Emory football circles. His playing showed the results of previous experience. Few indeed were the gains made through his side of the line.

R. P. Lester, Covington, Ga., Backfield. “Dick” began the year imbued with the determination to live up to the record made by his brother who preceded him by several years. He was easily the most consistent ground gainer on the Freshman eleven, starring with his long runs around end. His trusty toe was also a big factor in the success of his team.
C. J. Stokes, Moultrie, Ga., Line.
Clarence is a brainy football player and a fighter to the end. He captained the Freshman eleven and showed his skill as a field general by the excellent manner in which he handled his men on the field. He has plenty of sand and grit in his make-up and never acknowledges defeat.

Carlos Griffin, Valdosta, Ga., Line. Tall, rangy, and a true passer, Griffin played the center position for his team in jam-up style. He was the bane of the opposing teams, due largely to his fighting tactics both on offense and defense.

Boykin Clegg, Social Circle, Ga., Line. "Red" fully upheld the traditions of the sorrel-topped clan by his great work in the Freshman line. After undergoing the hardships of a "gob's" existence for a couple of years, a football game is a mere afternoon's diversion to him.

Fleming, Lester, Statesboro, Ga., Line. Another lad with experience on the deep blue sea. All muscle and determination, he was ever a thorn in the side of those who attempted to gain through his side of the line.

Jamie Pope, of the Freshman Class, was the most consistent performer of last year, annexing the singles title and, with Warren Quillian, his side-kick, coming out victorious in doubles also.

The final battle for supremacy in the singles was between Pope and Corry, in which Pope, after overcoming a one-set lead of his opponent, maintained such a steady pace thereafter that the ultimate result was never in doubt.

In the doubles finals the struggle for premier honors was between Pope and Quillian and Arnau and Bell. At the end of the second set the count was even, each side holding one to their credit; in the third Pope and Quillian overcame their opponents' lead, winning it and the next after a hard fight.

In the Summer School Carnes Harvard was crowned singles champion after some spirited competition, and battling in company with a fair co-ed, annexed the mixed doubles title also.

Benjamin Franklin writing from Paris to his nephew in Philadelphia said—"and as you will before that time have come to believe it is a very decent warrant of stability to serve one thing faithfully for a quarter of a century".

The firm of Foote & Davies Company are now in their thirty-third year of continuously serving the South in all matters pertaining to typography, without a change in the management; all the time working with you as well as for you.

Thirty-three years is not a great age when compared with the pyramids, but when the rapid development of our section and the many changes which have taken place are taken into consideration, it is, as Franklin said—"a very decent warrant of stability".
