In Gratitude and in Pride

The Editors of the Campus, on behalf of the Student Body and the Alumni of Emory, dedicate this, the 39th Volume, to the beloved memory of James Hinton, Ph. D.

July 24, 1886 - December 23, 1929
Professor of English in Emory University, 1916-1929
Director of University Libraries, 1926-1929

A devoted lover and faithful servant of his Alma Mater;
A teacher of distinction and a scholar of high rank;
A wise and discriminating counsellor;
A champion of all good causes;
A moulder of the young mind, an inspirer to braver and nobler thinking;
A man without guile and without dissimulation, faithful, pure, sincere, loyal;
A workman that needeth not to be ashamed.

His works will follow him
Foreword

This is the nineteen-thirty-one Campus. Whatever of value it may possess is not for today, but for that too-soon tomorrow, when the present will become the past, and the future will be the present. If, in that tomorrow, these few pictures and pages can form echoes in your memory—echoes, perhaps, of a friend half remembered, an incident half forgotten, or of a camaraderie disbanded forever, this ink and parchment will not have been in vain.

An Open Letter From the President

IN my judgment, you men whose activities and faces are portrayed in this volume are destined to face some of the greatest changes and most challenging demands ever made upon any generation. Your preparation may have much to do with the determination of the future of our nation.

This preparation cannot rest alone upon the accumulation of knowledge. Knowledge, of course, is necessary. The better educated a man is, the better prepared he is to help solve the problems of his time. But knowledge without character will not avail in solving the problems you will inevitably face.

Tomorrow will demand men; men trained to think accurately and fearlessly; men who think for themselves and who cannot be stampeded by the crowd or mob; men who have the vision to see the relation of the present to the future; men who have faith in God and in the ultimate triumph of His goodness; men who cannot be turned from the way of right and duty by any suggestion of ease, wealth, power, or glory. May Emory men abundantly meet these demands.

Cordially yours,

Harvey W. Cox.

Roaches in Dobbs Given Turkish Bath

"What shall we do about the roaches in Dobbs hall?" asked one Emory official to another.
"Steam 'em out," was the reply.
And so they locked up all the doors and windows and made Dobbs hall as tight as a drum. Then they turned on all the heat in the building, and the rooms and corridors were filled with hot, steamy air.

One would have thought that such an extreme Turkish bath would kill any cockroach.

But when the fumigating was finished and the dormitories were opened to the outside air, it turned out that the place was now infested with roaches ten times as numerous.

Roaches and turkeys will have to be given a Turkish bath in Dobbs hall.

Office of the Dean of Men
March 2, 1937

It is reported that dances are often in fraternity houses. Also, that dancing is indulged in on Sunday afternoons and evenings in some of the fraternity houses.

Such activities have not been authorized by the University administration. When they occur they endanger the charter of the organization responsible for them.

This is called to your attention for prudential reasons.

Respectfully,

[Signature]

IN 1914 Emory College became the College of Arts and Sciences of Emory University, and Dr. Edgar H. Johnson became its first Dean. The Old College was named in honor of Bishop John Emory of Maryland, who was elected to the episcopacy in 1832 on the same ballot with Bishop James O. Andrew. He later presided over the Fourth Session of the Georgia Conference, at Washington, Georgia, in 1834. In December, 1835, he was accidentally thrown from his carriage and killed near his home in Baltimore. The Conference Session of 1836, at Columbus, Georgia, appointed Trustees to incorporate the College and directed them to call it Emory, probably at the suggestion of Bishop Andrew as a tribute to the memory of his lamented colleague. In pursuance of the will of the Conference, the Trustees bought 1,400 acres of land near Covington, Georgia, for $14,000, and at the suggestion of Dr. Ignatius A. Few, gave it the classic name of Oxford. In 1837 the College was opened for the reception of students, under the presidency of Dr. Few. The first class was graduated in 1841. The College was continuously in session at Oxford until 1919, at which time it was moved and opened in the Summer Quarter of 1919 on its present location in the Druid Hills section of Atlanta.

The College of Arts and Sciences offers the following degrees: Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Philosophy, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Arts in Education, and Bachelor of Science in Engineering.

Graduate School

FOR many years the Master's Degree was awarded, on application, to graduates of Emory College, of at least three years' standing, who had been engaged since graduation "in literary occupations." After 1885, a course of study for the degree was set out in the catalogue and an examination thereon was required before the degree would be conferred, though all of this work might be done in absentia. In 1900, it was provided that the degree should thereafter be given in course to resident graduates only, on recommendation of the College Faculty, and this provision, with amendments, continued in force until 1919. With the concentration of all the departments of the University in Atlanta, a Graduate School was established with responsibility for graduate instruction, and for the recommendation of candidates for advanced degrees.

The Graduate School offers to men and women the degrees of Master of Arts and Master of Science.

THE organization of the School of Business Administration was authorized by the Trustees of Emory University in 1919.

The course of study extends over four years and leads to the degree of Bachelor of Business Administration.

A large and increasing proportion of college graduates are now entering business as their life work. It is but natural that many of these college students should desire to pursue such studies as will enable them to engage more intelligently and successfully in business activities. It is to meet this demand that the School of Business Administration has been organized.

Atlanta is the largest city in the Southeast and the seat of varied and large business enterprises. This makes it convenient for the School of Business Administration to have men of wide and successful business experience to lecture before its students.

The course is not narrowly technical. The curriculum is designed to afford a combination of what have usually been considered the more liberal studies, with prescribed courses in economics and business administration. Including as it does courses in accounting, business law, business finance, and mathematics of investment, the School of Business Administration is well suited for the college students who expect to qualify as certified public accountants.

The courses of this School are well adapted also for those who expect to enter the legal profession. It is permissible for students who have finished the prescribed courses to take during their senior year the work of the first year in the Lamar School of Law. Since the course in the School of Law covers three years, a student may thus obtain in six years, both the degree of Bachelor of Business Administration and Bachelor of Laws.

The School of Medicine

The School of Medicine represents the final consolidation of several medical schools which have existed in Atlanta. The Atlanta Medical College was founded in 1854 under the leadership of Dr. J. G. Westmoreland. In 1878 the Southern Medical College was chartered. In 1898 the faculties of these two institutions, recognizing the immensely greater value and efficiency of one medical college in Atlanta, consolidated the two schools as the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons. In 1905 the Atlanta School of Medicine was established and it was successful from the start. In 1913 it was merged with the College of Physicians and Surgeons under the old historic name, "Atlanta Medical College," and occupied the property on Butler Street, which was the original site, and has been continuously used for medical teaching since 1854. The faculty of the newly organized medical college soon realized that the aims of the merger could be accomplished only by securing an endowment, a university connection, and hospital facilities adapted to teaching purposes. Its ambition was to establish an institution of dignity and permanent value, whose graduates would receive recognition throughout the United States. Success crowned this ambition when the Atlanta Medical College was legally made the School of Medicine of Emory University. The transfer was completed and the title passed on May 24, 1915.

The instruction in the first two years, in the elementary branches, was immediately transferred to the University Campus, where the Anatomy, Physiology, and Chemistry buildings had been erected. Upon the completion of the J. J. Gray Clinic building, on Armstrong Street in 1917, most of the third year work was transferred to these quarters. The work of the fourth year was done in the Grady Hospital and in the main building of the old college.

Beginning with the session of 1921-1922 the group of buildings in this locality, formerly used for medical teaching only, were turned over to the City of Atlanta as the Out-Patient department, the Entrance Pavilion, and the Colored Section of Grady Hospital.

Pre-Medical courses of two years duration, and also combination B.S. and M.D. courses are offered in the College of Arts and Sciences.

The Lamar School of Law

The Lamar School of Law was chartered by the State of Georgia, January 25th, 1915. It was named in honor of the late Mr. Justice L. Q. C. Lamar, of the United States Supreme Court, a distinguished Georgian and a graduate of Emory College in the class of 1845. Its first session began September 25th, 1916.

The object of the school is to provide a thorough training in the fundamental principles of the common law, the English and American system of equity, and the statute law of the United States, such as will fit its graduates for successful practice at the bar of any state. It also aims to offer opportunity for legal study to students who do not intend to engage in the active practice of law, but who desire to make a study of some particular legal subject for business or cultural reasons. Lastly, by keeping before its students proper ideals, it hopes to develop in them such a sense of honor and regard for professional ethics as will make them in the practice of the law, exponents of the best traditions of the profession.

The School is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, and is approved by the American Bar Association.

Two endowed chairs have been given the Law School. In 1916 Judge John S. Candler, of Atlanta, gave twenty-five thousand dollars toward the endowment of the Richard H. Clark Chair of Law, in honor of one of Georgia's ablest superior court judges, and one of the codifiers of the first Code of Georgia.

In 1920 Judge Candler gave twenty-five thousand dollars toward the endowment of the Thomas J. Simmons Chair of Common Law (to be held by the Dean of the School), in honor of the late Chief Justice Simmons. Other contributions have been and are being made to these funds.

The Candler School of Theology

Following the creation by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of an Educational Commission "to be appointed by the College of Bishops to be composed of sixteen members, four of whom shall be Bishops, four ministers other than Bishops and eight laymen," in June, 1914, the Educational Commission was instructed to "consider and determine the advisability and wisdom of establishing an institution, or institutions, of higher education of the grade of a university of, for, and on behalf of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South." A committee was appointed to look into the matter of selecting a location.

On July 15, 1914, the Commission met in Atlanta to hear and consider the report of this Committee. After the fullest consideration the University was located at Atlanta, the Chamber of Commerce pledging $500,000 as a gift from the city, the trustees of the Wesley Memorial Building tendering the use of that structure for the School of Theology, and the Trustees of the Wesley Memorial Hospital offering that institution for the use of the School of Medicine. On July 16th, Mr. Asa G. Candler, Sr., addressed a letter to the Chairman of the Education Commission offering the sum of $1,000,000 for the "endowment of an institution, the plans and methods of which are to be definitely directed toward the advancement of sound learning and pure religion." This magnificent gift was quickly followed by a generous donation of $25,000 from Mr. T. T. Fishburne, of Roanoke, Va., another member of the Commission.

Immediately after the founding of the University was assured, the Educational Commission took steps for the opening of the School of Theology. In September following, the School of Theology was formally opened in the Wesley Memorial Building in Atlanta. Plans for the erection of special buildings were begun at once, and resulted in the Candler School of Theology with its classrooms, administrative offices, library, and beautiful chapel situated on the Emory University Campus. A half million dollar endowment was voted for the support of the School of Theology and other special funds have augmented its income and equipment.

The University is particularly indebted to its former Chancellor Bishop W. A. Candler, for bringing to it the finest collection of Wesleyana in the world, the fruit of many years of careful search by Mr. Thursfield Smith, of Salop, England. This great collection contains many rare books and books of personal association, such as Charles Wesley's own hymn book, manuscripts, and autograph letters of John and Charles Wesley, and their mother and father, and others, trinkets and articles belonging to the Wesleys, souvenirs of anniversaries and celebrations, and so forth. Every edition of the hymnal of the Methodist Church, files of church magazines, and a variety of documents of historic interest are likewise included.

THE Southern Library School was established April 5, 1905, through the generosity of Mr. Andrew Carnegie. In April, 1907, the name of the school was changed to the Library School, Carnegie Library of Atlanta. From 1914 to 1925 the school was financed by the Carnegie Corporation of New York; beginning with the session of 1925 the support was provided jointly by the Carnegie Corporation and the City of Atlanta. In November, 1925, the school became affiliated with Emory University, and raised its entrance requirements to admit only students who have a Bachelor's degree from an approved college or University, effective, September, 1926.

Beginning with the session of September, 1930, the administration and control was transferred to Emory University and the school was financed jointly by the Carnegie Corporation, the Rosenwald Fund, and Emory University itself. The school was also moved to the University Campus and was established in new quarters in the Asa Griggs Candler Library Building.

The Library School is one of the charter members of the Association of American Library Schools. With years of strong constructive work already back of it, now through its connection with a University of recognized standing, the School's future of greater influence is assured, and Atlanta, which until recently was the only center of library education in the South, promises to serve to an even greater extent than heretofore. In line with the advancing standards of the day, the school has placed itself on a graduate basis in order to serve more effectively the educational activities of the South. It has met the requirements of a Graduate Library School, and has been so accredited by the Board of Education for Librarianship of the American Library Association.

The faculty consists of nine instructors and fifteen lecturers. The School is open to both men and women students and grants the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Library Science.

The School of Nursing
Wesley Memorial Hospital

The School of Nursing of Wesley Memorial Hospital is associated with Emory University School of Medicine. The Hospital itself is located on the University Campus. This association affords the student nurse the atmosphere of the University. Thus, there is available to her the use of the new University Library in which may be found books which deal with any subject in which she may be interested. The Library of the School of Medicine is permanently located in the Hospital. The general University lectures and activities are also open to her.

This association also assures the most careful and thorough instruction in the preliminary and fundamental courses. Anatomy, physiology, chemistry, materia medica, bacteriology, and pathology are taught by the faculty of the School of Medicine, using the laboratories and the equipment of that school for the purpose. The lectures on medicine, surgery, and the various specialties are likewise given by the faculty of the School of Medicine. In fact, the student nurse feels that she is in reality pursuing a course of study in the University. Plans are now being worked out where by the addition of two years a student may receive both the Diploma in Nursing and the Degree of Bachelor of Science. Senior students in the School of Nursing now receive their Diplomas at the regular University commencement.

A new building erected as a memorial to Mrs. Florence E. Candler Harris is now available as a home for the student nurses and the graduate staff. It contains offices, lecture rooms, and a library for use in connection with the School of Nursing.

Serving as the highest organ of the student government system, the Student Activities Council exercises indirect control over all forms of student endeavor. The Council is made up of representatives from all the departments of the University and meets every two weeks to supervise the efficient working of the various campus affairs and to handle any crisis which might arise.

This Council elects the Business Managers of the three Student publications and drafts each year the budget for the various student activities to work on for the following year. The President of the student body serves as the President of the Student Activities Council.

The University Honor Council is composed of five students and one member of the faculty. This committee is nominated by the outgoing council and is elected by the student body each spring quarter to serve during the following scholastic year. All violations of the Honor Code are reported to the Chairman of the Council, who summons the rest of the Body for an official trial of the accused. For a direct breach of the Honor Code as laid down in the Y. M. C. A. Handbook, the usual punishment is dismissal from school, and from a sentence at the hands of the Honor Committee there is absolutely no appeal.
Independent Council

The President of the Independent Student Body, there being one elected each quarter, automatically becomes President of the Council also.

PROGRAMME

Augmenting, in a highest possible way, the regular instruction afforded by the University, the Student Lecture Association brings to the Campus, men who have attained the top in the various fields. The programme for 1930-1931 presenting such diverse subjects as discussions of poetry, science, travel, and history, reflects no mean share of credit and honor on the group which obtained the speakers, and made their presentations possible.

1931
In bringing forth this thirty-ninth volume of the Emory Campus, gratitude and appreciation are due a number of very helpful people besides the not always so helpful staff, who are responsible for whatever success the book might have. To Mr. Earl Sanders, of Foote and Davies, the Editor is indebted for his invaluable aid in visualizing and planning the art work, the dummy and the lay-outs. Ben Bailey, of the same firm, was most helpful in rousing a sedentary nature to a show of action, and in supplying ideas and necessary information, as was Mr. Clayton Webb of the same organization.

To Miss Clarissa Poteat and Mr. Walt Dargan, of Wrigley’s Engraving Company, who are living proofs that a keen sense of humor makes work pleasure and business efficient, the expert handling of the engravings and the success of the Collegiana Section is due. Mr. Stanley Marques, "Doots" Steffel, and Joe Martin, of the White's Studios, were geniuses of co-operation and experienced assistance. Miss Genevieve Camp, of the Atlanta Georgian, was more than kind in supplying us with photographs. To Vera, Elsie, Miss Hilley and Miss Pauline in the Registrar's and Dean's offices, and to Miss Thurman at Grady, profuse thanks and a deep, abiding awe are given, in recognition of their cheerful help and their infinite patience. And lastly, to Robert, the janitor of the Physics Building, who sometimes kept the Annual Office passably clean, we give another thank.

THE EDITOR.

Organized fourteen years ago on the campus of old Emory College at Oxford, Georgia, the Emory Glee Club in a comparatively brief period of time has come to be recognized by musical critics as one of the outstanding collegiate choruses in the United States. The amazing success of the club on its European and Cuban tours has brought it an international popularity. A few of the club’s outstanding achievements are two European tours, a Cuban tour, twenty-four records made in England, selections recorded for the Victor Company, and fourteen successful concert seasons.

EUROPEAN PRESS NOTICES

... These American boys sang with real feeling and a precision of ensemble that could hardly have been bettered, while the quality of their voices and the blending of their tone were excellent in every respect.—London Morning Post.

... The Club is at its best in the negro spirituals; it sings them with a fine fervor and a thorough understanding.—Ernest Newman, in the Glasgow Herald.

... This score of singing students from the Southern State of Georgia is the best choral combination ever heard at the Coliseum.—London Referee.

... I think no sensitive listener who heard them sing negro spirituals will ever forget it.—Yorkshire Post.

The Emory Players

Dr. Thomas H. English, Director

The Emory Players was founded in the fall of 1927 by a small group of students, and operated under the name of the Dramatic Club until this year when the present title was adopted. The sole purpose in organizing was to formulate a permanent club for the production of plays. To date three full length plays have been produced: "Seven Keys to Baldpate," 1928-29; "She Stoops to Conquer," 1929-30; and "The Yellow Jacket," 1930-31. In addition three one-act plays, and two more one-act plays in connection with Stunt Night in 1928-29, and 1929-30 have been given. A charm is given to each student making the club.

Major Sports
A NEW system of scoring was used at Emory during the 1930 season. One point was given for each earned first down, while the scoring of touchdowns, safeties, and field goals remained the same as before. This system was not very popular and probably will not be used during the 1931 season. However, tie games were avoided in several instances, for none of the teams had a strong offense.

Compulsory athletics for Freshmen nearly proved disastrous to the rest of the teams in the Emory Conference because the Rats were only beaten out of the title in a playoff against the Juniors, which they lost by only one point. Every game was hard fought, and every team was dangerous. The standing of the elevens was so close that up until the last game of the season was played, it looked like a triple tie among the Juniors, Frosh, and Seniors, with the Sophs always looming as dangerous contenders.

The coaches are to be commended for their steady and faithful work. The Freshman Coaches, Hauck and Jenkins, had a great deal to do with the success of the rats. Coaches Lester of the Sophs, Peebles of the Juniors, and Tyler of the Seniors, were unusually efficient and diligent. Wallace Watson, 1930 manager, aided by Cecil Heffner, who was elected manager for 1931, Max Blumberg and Jimmie Arnold deserve no little credit for their excellent handling of the managerial duties. The field was well marked off, and in as good condition as can be expected for an unsodded field.

The Coaches of the various teams were:

The Seniors were handicapped all season by inability to get a full team working together, but their potential strength was good enough to win half of their games.

"Tig" Thrasher captained his team from center position, and played his usual steady game. The Meds did not help this year's Seniors very much, and this fact probably kept them from having a championship team. The Senior Eleven had plenty of bulk. They sported the largest forward wall in school. Sam Belcher, "Tig" Thrasher, Foster Memory, and Virlyn Moore were bulwarks of the massive line, while Roy Sellars and Crawford Pilcher did the most effective work in the backfield.

Because of their flashy performance on the gridiron, Roy Sellars, fullback, Crawford Pilcher, quarterback, and Sam Belcher, end, were awarded letters for being selected on the All-Emory team.

EMORY CONFERENCE CHAMPIONS

AIDED by a shifty quartet of powerful backs and a fighting line, the Juniors battled to a gridiron championship. Starting the season in a rather slipshod manner by losing to the Rats, the Juniors steadily improved, and developed into one of the best teams ever seen at Emory.

Coach Peebles spent his third season with this team and finally corralled a winning outfit. He was blessed with the addition of two new backs in Morgan Driskell and John Wilson which aided the team considerably.

“Social” Quillian captained this aggregation of Juniors and showed a wonderful spirit of leadership. He was out part of the season with a broken collarbone, but lost no time getting back into the thick of the championship fight as soon as his injured member healed.

Five Juniors were awarded letters: Gene Griffin, end; Sam Cooper, tackle; Roland Gibbs, center; Morgan Driskell, fullback and Max Hall, halfback.

Five Juniors were awarded letters: Gene Griffin, end; Sam Cooper, tackle; Roland Gibbs, center; Morgan Driskell, fullback and Max Hall, halfback.

The Sophomores finished a rather unsuccessful season, winning only one game out of six, but several of the games were close and only decided by breaks. A harder fighting team could not be found on the campus. The loss of Tom Law, last year's fullback and the early loss of Bob Candler and Pete Hathcock weakened the punch of the team considerably. This aggregation will bear watching next season, for a fighting spirit is hard to count out.

S. R. Bridges captained the 1930 edition of Sophomores, better known as "goldbricks," and gave an excellent account of himself from tackle and fullback positions. Professor J. G. Lester worked unceasingly as coach for the ill fated sophs, and deserves credit for sticking it out with a losing team.

The Sophomores placed Sim Wilbanks, a tackle, Milton Bennett and Sidney Penny, guards, and Milton Camp, end on the All-Emory team.

All-Emory Selections

Rollins Gibbs—Center
Playing with the championship Juniors, Red proved to be one of the most accurate snappers ever to play at Emory. He plugged the gap in the center of the thin red line in admirable fashion.

Milton Bennett—Guard
By means of his tigerish-like charging into the backfield of the opponents, Milt made his letter in his second year of Emory football. His ability to open holes in the opposing lines was noteworthy.

Sydney Penny—Guard
Sydney came to the Sophomores from the Tech freshmen team of 1929, and because of his speed and aggressiveness was recognized as one of the most talented players on the campus. He was down under punts with the ends, and aided them considerably in nailing the safety man.

Sam was probably the most devastating tackle in school, for his defensive feats stamped him as a dangerous man. He came to Emory after two years at V. M. I., where he gained valuable football experience.

Sim Wilbanks—Tackle
The Alabama flash served as offensive fullback and defensive tackle, and handled this switch position with unusual skill. Sim’s love for football causes him to be a great fighter and sportsman. He gained practically all the ground for the Sophomore team by his bear-like rushes into the line.

Sam Belcher—End
Sam was admittedly the most rugged football player in the Emory Conference, and it was exceedingly hard to take him out of a play. His sterling defensive performance was equalled by his ability to box tackles.
All-Emory Selections

Gene Griffin—End

Because of his ability to avoid blockers and tackle his man, Gene was awarded his letter for the second time in as many years. He got under punts with unusual speed and quickness, which fact caused him to be an unmistakable asset to the Juniors.

Milton Camp—End (No picture)

Milton has proven in two years of football that he is one of the best defensive ends in the game. Very little yardage has been gained around his end, and the opposing quarterbacks soon learned to direct their plays away from his side of the line.

Crawford Pilcher—Quarterback

"Pansy" was the most heady quarterback of the season, and ran the Senior team with amazing coolness. His low, sure blocking made possible several long runs by his teammates.

Max Hall—Halfback

Max has a most deceptive hip motion coupled with a change of pace, which caused opposing tacklers no little embarrassment. His broken-field running featured practically all of the games in which his team played.

Morgan Driskell—Halfback

Coming to the Juniors from the Navy Plebe team of 1929, Morgan lived up to every expectation, and proved to be the main cog in the Junior offense. His backing up of the line was phenomenal, and disappointed a great many opposing backs.

Roy Sellars—Fullback

Roy was both shifty and powerful in his line plunges and off-tackle smashes. He scored more touchdowns than any other man in school, and most of them were a result of long runs. Roy played fullback for the Seniors.
Freshman Football Team

The Rats, for the first time in years nearly won a championship. They were defeated by the Juniors in a play-off game ending 9-8. The new system of athletics made possible the Rats' great showing, for they were required to attend practice.

Coaches Hauck and Jenkins whipped their team into shape before the others got started; therefore, the Rats went through the first half of the season undefeated. There has never been a shifter, trickier team in the Emory league.

Freshmen were ineligible for letters, but fourteen were awarded numerals: Frank Swift, Charles Coleman, Albert Stubbs, Bruce Logue, Booshie Turman, Harry Faegar, Bob Ware, Roy Watson, Bob Pringle, Wesley Stipe, Jack Hunter, J. E. Linn, W. Johnson, T. K. Slaughter. A great many real stars are included in this list and several of them will make their letters next year. Turman, Stubbs, Watson, and Logue stood out from the galaxy of Freshmen.

Basket-Ball

THE inter-class basket-ball race was unique in several ways. For the first time in four years, the team from the Medical School failed to win the title, losing the crown to the Seniors. Eight teams played throughout the entire season of two rounds, or fourteen games for each team. Every game scheduled was actually played off, this being the first time in Emory cage history that there have been no forfeits. Whitie Craig again served as referee for most of the games, and kept the situation well in hand. Bill Barnett and his helpers handled the managerial details capably.

Leading individual scorers for the season were Codger Moore, 210; J. L. Heard, 172; Allen Logan, 161; A. D. Smith, 158; and Pansy Pilcher, 154. The champion Seniors led the teams in scoring with 596 points, followed by the Juniors with 478, and the Meds with 455.

Men awarded letters at the end of the season were Henry Bowden, Sam Zion, Sanborn Cooper, and A. D. Smith, Juniors; Virlyn Moore and "Heesa" Pilcher, Seniors; John Neal and Jimmy Loveless, Sophs; and Allen Logan, Med.

In addition to the class competition, the regular Pre-season and Pan-Hellenic tournaments were held. The Celtic Outlaws, composed of Loveless, Heard, Austin, Zion, Greenberg, Walker, and Millender, won the finals of the Pre-season meet by licking the Rogues 31-16 and 21-16 in a two-game contest. Carl Lewis and A. D. Smith led the Rogues.

Basket-Ball

By winning their third successive title, the Chi Phi team permanently annexed the Pan-Hellenic trophy. With no less than six cage letter men to choose from, the Chi Phis had an easy march to the championship, overwhelming the Sigma Chi team in the final game. Moore, Thrasher, Logan, Pilcher, Cooper, Cantey, Hanks, McGhee, Kels Boland, and Joe Boland were some of the Chi Phi players.

Seniors—After threatening to win the title as Juniors and Sophs, the class of 1931 came through as Seniors and won all of their fourteen games to have indisputable claim to the honors. Moore, Pilcher, Heard, Thrasher, Sharp, and Steadman were the main factors in the success of the team. Codger Moore climaxed his career with a brilliant season.

Juniors—Supplying four of the nine letter men, the Juniors presented a well balanced line-up, and were serious contenders all season. A. D. Smith captained the squad and led it in scoring. Bowden, Smith, Zion, and Cooper, made letters. The third year men finished the season in a tie with the Meds for second place.

Meds—Featuring several former football stars, the Meds were a rough and ready crew of cagers. However, they were not able to retain the crown which had been held by a Med team for the past three or four seasons. Hodges, Logan, the Boland brothers, McGinty, Boone, and Pierotti were the regulars on the Medical outfit.
Sophs—Centering their attack around Jimmy Loveless and John Neal, the Sophs were always to be feared. They were the hard luck team of the season, losing several games by only one point, and none by wide margins. They finished in a tie with the Grads for fifth place. Two of their number won letters.

Grads—Combining Pocotte’s consistently steady play with intermittent flashes of brilliance on the part of McGibony, the Grads showed more power than any recent team from the Graduate school. One of the best games of the year was the affair in which the Seniors barely defeated the Grads by a scant point. This was the biggest scare of the year for the champs.

Law—After a tough season last year in which they won only one game, the Barristers came back this year to win three games and get out of the league cellar. Braselton was their star, ably assisted by Candler, Howard, Cox, McLamb, and Hoffman. The Lawyers ended up in seventh place.

Freshmen—Except for the fact that they couldn’t sink goals, the Rats had a good team. Their defense and passing attack were good, but they did not have anyone who was a dependable point getter. Logue and McGhee were probably the most consistent performers on the squad. At the end of the season, eight Frosh were awarded numerals.
Manager Ralph Boynton and his underlings discharged the many duties connected with managing very well. Their work included keeping the field in shape, seeing to the supply of balls and bats, keeping scores and other statistical work, and several other varied tasks.

Dr. Turner, the old reliable, again called the balls and strikes and kept the games well in hand.

A unique feature of the season was the two-day visit of Norman “Kid” Elberfield, former Southern Association manager. The “Kid” imparted a lot of diamond wisdom to Emory players in the two afternoons that he coached.

As to the final standings of the teams for the 1931 season the sophs started off in whirlwind fashion to win the first four games, and are sure bets for the title. Led by the brilliant pitching of Landers and McLennan, the second year men appear to be the best team in the race. Bond, Fleming, Blair and Landers are big guns in the batting attack.

At the time the Campus goes to press the Juniors and Seniors seem to be fighting for second and third, while the Grads and Freshmen look like even bets for fourth place. The Theologs, winners of last year, seem doomed to finish in the cellar.

Juniors—With better pitching, the Juniors would probably be the strongest team in the loop. Hall, Tucker and Walters did the best stickwork for the Juniors.

Senior-Med.—Aided by the Meds, the Seniors presented a string lineup. Jones and Hodges did the hurling. Robinson, Moore and Pilcher headed the team in batting standings.

Theology—Playing without recruiting stars from other schools, the Theologs were not able to duplicate their title winning performance of last year. Sweeny, Cunningham and Bird were the leading clouters on the team. Wood starred in the field.

Law-Grad.—Combining old Emory stars and stars from other colleges, the Lawyers and Grads gave a good account of themselves. Hauck, Mosley and Lee did some mighty clouting for the cause.

Track Resume

The customary intercollegiate track schedule, which in the past has held the foremost place among intercollegiate athletics at Emory, was abolished for the 1931 season by vote of the student body. In its place, a more extensive interclass and interorganization program was tried out.

Emory's success in the intercollegiate season of 1930 was only moderate. Losing the first meet of the year to Presbyterian College by a substantial margin, the team got a bad start. However, the second meet, with Birmingham-Southern as opponents, resulted in a decisive win for Emory. In the annual state meet, Emory was second to Georgia.

Hilland Allgood and Wilson Patterson, as joint managers, were prompt and efficient in discharging their duties. In co-operation with Captain Vogel, Coach Jack Lee and Coach Fitts, they worked out the details of new track program which displaced the intercollegiate schedule. Their work also included the care of equipment and the conditioning of the track.

In the annual hare and hound races, which are a part of the track activities for the year, Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity won the team cup with a total of 259 points, barely nosing out the Sigma Chi runners, who amassed 258 points. Charlie Ward, with 108 points, was the leading individual scorer. Other leading scorers were Joe Moxley, 92; Ben Coe, 88; Arthur Crusselle, 79; Glenn Roberts, 72; and Charlie Crane, 72.
Bob Vogel (Captain)—Sprints. Bob's work on the team in his freshman and sophomore years was so valuable that he was elected to captain the squad during his junior year. He is undoubtedly the best sprinter Emory has boasted, and as a result he holds the college records in both the 100 and 220-yard dashes. In addition to sprinting, he broad jumps and runs the low hurdles.

Carlton Nunan—Distances. In point of service, Carlton was the veteran of the squad, having been on the team four years. He helps take care of the mile and the half mile runs, and occasionally tries the broad jump or holds down a berth on the relay team.

Arthur Fincher—Pole Vault. Fincher has been a consistent point getter in the vaulting event for three years. He is also good for points in the high jump. Along with Vogel, he is one of the best track men in the class of 1932.

Claude Fullerton—Quarter mile. After trying the longer distances for two years, Fullerton found his calling as a quarter miler. He did a good day's work by running in the regular 440-yard race and also turning off a quarter as a member of the relay team.

Allen Logan—Weight Events, Jumps. Allen is the most widely known athlete ever to represent Emory. His natural ability, coupled with his faithful training and practice, made him one of the best all-round track and field men in the country, as is evidenced by his excellent performances in the decathlon event at the Drake Relays, which he entered for two years. The second year he entered he took seventh place in a field that included stars from all sections of the country. In dual meets, Allen is usually good for twenty or more points. His best events are the high jump, shot put, and pole vault, but he is also good in the broad jump, discus, javelin, and high hurdles. He holds the Georgia state meet record in the high jump and the pole vault.
Tennis

The 1931 tennis team faced one of the hardest schedules in Emory tennis history. The list included matches with Alabama, Georgia, Birmingham-Southern, and Tech. The annual State meet was again sponsored by Emory and displayed a fast field of racket-wielders from Mercer, Georgia, Tech, and Emory.

Captain Fincher McDaniel led a team composed of S. R. Bridges, Charles Rainey, Manager Ed. Jones, and Weir McDiarmid against the opposition with fair success. The first two matches of the season were lost to Georgia and Alabama by close scores. However, the players improved and won some outstanding victories. The team, as usual, was selected by a ranking tournament.

Junior College day was an overwhelming success for the local team. S. R. Bridges won the singles crown, and Allison Adams paired with Pierre Howard to form a winning doubles combination.

THE Emory golf team had an unusually successful season considering the fact that only one member of the 1931 squad returned to school. Matches with Mercer, Clemson and Georgia were included in the schedule. Emory again entered a team in the State meet held at Druid Hills Golf Club which team finished well up in the standing.

Bobby Chambers, captain of the team, won the Spring tournament by defeating Charles Murphey in a close battle. The other semifinalists were S. R. Bridges and Deneen McCormack.

The Atlanta team captured their match on Junior College day with ease. Two freshmen and a Sophomore composed the team.

Swimming, though the youngest intercollegiate sport on the campus, has become the most important. With most of the old men back, the varsity team made a good showing. A large number of freshmen came out for the freshman team. Merrill was high point man on the varsity, and McFadden starred for the frosh.

Freshman Athletics

ONE of the most unusual features of the new junior college curriculum of Emory is the fact that athletics is a required activity for all freshmen, filling the place formerly occupied by compulsory military training.

Freshmen in the College of Arts and Sciences and the School of Business Administration are required to devote at least three hours a week to some form of athletic activity for which they are physically fit. This activity is supervised by six specially appointed fellows of the graduate school who were outstanding athletes in their undergraduate days.

Under this system, the number of freshmen taking part in each sport is so large that outstanding freshmen performers are awarded class numerals in each sport. Freshmen are no longer eligible for the varsity "E," however.

Each freshman is allowed to choose the sport or sports that he wants to take as part of his regular class schedule, and is assigned to a particular section which has regular meetings.

The graduate students who instructed freshman athletics for 1930-1931 were as follows:

Pat H. Stephenson . . . Tennis, Volley-ball

FEB. 14—Annual pre-exam Flu epidemic sweeps campus. Dean Woodward visits each sick student personally. Many have relapsed.

FEB. 15—B. O. Mixon, Halitosis Squires, and Tower Wynn taken into Pi Alpha. B. O. thumbs nose at Delta Tau who said he wasn't frat material. Clary and Jenkins hold midnight celebration in Chemistry building.

FEB. 17—Jack Cannon goes to Sigma Chi house for dinner. Dooley doesn't know why but he didn't pledge.

FEB. 18—Last three Owls make appearance on campus. Smith hollers railroad. Tennembaum unanimously elected to Independent Council.

FEB. 19—Yamaguchi mounted on bicycle, becomes campus hit-and-run menace.

THE last time Dooley paid a visit to the Lucy Elizabeth Maternity Home, he secured this picture of Baby Gootledge Cartledge, aged three and a half, and a sly little fellow if there ever was one, busily engaged at his favorite playpretty, The Emory Wheel. Baby Goot had just been lowered from his crib. "He has been crying all day," said the Nurse, "so we just thought we'd let him sit here on the floor and write Editorials. He can't possibly hurt anything and it keeps him quiet." Dooley heartily agreed with the Nurse, who was a neat little red-haired number with a well-turned ankle and leg; so he asked her out to lunch and they left the infant gurgling over split infinitives and misplaced prepositions while they went out to see places and things.

A PLAY IN ONE ACT AND MANY INSTALLMENTS

(As the curtain ascends the living room of the Phi Delta Theta house (the old one) is disclosed. The lounges and chairs have been drawn into a semi-circle. Janitor James has taken the bottles and glasses out to be refilled and has taken Floyd Everett out the back way because company is expected. Billy Smith, Tom Callaway, and Slick Williams are all dressed up as though they were going to Margaret Bryan's again. The door bell rings and the Three Mighty goes to answer it. He comes back with Tucker, Trimore, and several of the usual unknown Kappa Sigs. They all sit down and Slick arises and clears his throat.)

Slick: "Well, men, the Society of the A. K. R. H. which as you all know, means the Across the Rail Road Houses, will come to order. Now, you all know this thing is getting damn serious...

(Voice from the darkened pool room): "Who in the---- hell is that ---- doing all that----- cussing in there? I've got a nice girl in here with me."

Slick: "Oh, pardon me, Palmer. I'll pipe down. (Shuts the door to pool room). Now, as I was saying, things are getting serious. Here we are over on the unfashionable side of the railroad and everybody else is in their new houses on the other side. We got to do something and do it before all the Seminary dances. After all, any chapter has a certain amount of social prestige to keep up."

Oscar Lott (in a whisper to Tucker): "What is this thing called social prestige?"
Tucker: "How should I know? I'm a Pi K. A."
Tiddymo: "But, Slick, we all own our houses and I don't see much chance of selling them or anything."
Osgood Simmons (another Kappa Sig): "Well, we own our house too, and we're in just as bad shape as you all. We got to do something to keep getting good boys like we have for the past four or five years."
Callaway: "Can't we have a rummage sale or rent out Smith's Packard like Zeigler does the 'Y' truck and raise some money for a new house?"
Lott: "Oh, let's get serious and do something. I used to have an Uncle Abie who burned down his store once a year and after he had collected the insurance, would open up another store. Why can't we do the same thing? We're willing to start the ball rolling. We could have a fire next week. Don't you think it's an idea?"
Tucker: "If you hadn't had it, it would be."
Tiddymo: "Shut up, Tucker. Even Oscar has ideas now and then. But, really, that's pretty keen, only I think we should be the first to have a fire because we have least chance to sell our house."
Smith: "No, I think we can decide among us who goes first. Let's match for it and the odd man is first. Since Smith is the oddest man in our chapter I appoint him to match for us."
Tiddymo: "I'll match for the honor of Pi Kappa Alpha. Tucker, have you a coin?"
Tucker (in a deep bass voice): "Hell, no, Joe. If you let me match I'll furnish the coin."
Tiddymo: "All right."
Lott: "And I'll uphold your honor, if any."
Simmons: "No, Oscar, you just match and let the honor take care of itself."
(They gather around and the metal discs spin in the air.)
Tiddymo (aside): "Throw tails, Tucker."
Tucker (also aside): "Don't be vulgar. I can't."
(The group closes in and the coins hit the hands.)
Slick: "All right, Kappa Sigs, come up. Ah, it's heads. Now you come up Smith. It's tails naturally. And now Tucker, what've you got? It's heads. We win! Oh, good, goodly! We'll have our fire sometime next week—say Wednesday night. The weather ought to be fair so we can get a good crowd."
Tiddymo: "Tucker, I told you to throw tails. Here, let me throw next time."
Lott: "Let's match to see who's second. You get me, Tiddy?"
(They flip the coins.)
Oscar: "I have heads."
Tiddymo: "I got tails, damn it."
Tucker: "Yes, always throw tails. I'm going home. Good night."
Smith: "Now you Kappa Sigs wait until our house has been burned about a month before you do anything. Let's adjourn now. I've got a date to go riding."
(Exeunt. As they reach the door Tiddymo calls back.)
Tiddymo: "Hey, Three Mighty! Don't forget to phone all the newspapers to send photographers out so we can get pictures of the house burning for the annual."
(An Asbestos Curtain falls slowly.)

Have you ever been out with friends, or have you ever been out to a dance, say the Irumas Dance for instance, when you were suddenly seized with dizziness in the head, looseness of the tongue, or shining of other parts of the body? We're not allowed a football team
That will break thru Georgia's line;
With all the baseball bull we fling
We'll never beat Tech's nine;
But our poker teams are winners,
Defeat we never fear,
So buy your lot and hike the pot;
We need your money here.

CHORUS:
Emory, Emory, thy future we foretell,
We were raised on Coca-Cola
So no wonder we raise hell,
When e'er we meet Tech's engineers,
We drink them off their cool.
So fill your cup, here's to the luck
Of the Coca-Cola School.

We cannot pull off gay soirees
We never fling a dance,
And, as to all those spicy shows
We haven't got a chance,
But when it comes to slingin' "bull"
I guess we hold our ground,
For if "bull" were only water
This would be a seaport town.

The Traveling Salesman and the Farmer's Daughter

Once upon a time there was a boy and a girl who lived on a farm. It was a hell of a big farm with a lot of white marble buildings and out-houses and long green lawns surrounded by murmuring pine trees. The boy's name was Cuthbert. Every morning Cuthbert would get up bright and early and water the milk and pay off the boot-legger. Then he would go hunt for Hortense. Hortense was the girl. Hortense was a sweet unaffected child of nature and she thought Cuthbert wasn't so bad for the time being. When she drove her spanking new buggy around the barnyard she had the country bumpkins and yokels as dizzy as Romeo gets Juliet before she falls off the balcony in the third act. Hortense and Cuthbert spent their time swinging on the garden gate, gathering wild flowers, and hunting irregular verbs; in fact their affection was almost idyllic.

Life went on unhurriedly, until one day the twelve-eighteen brought the villain into town. His name was E. Van Waddingham Waddingham-Smith and he sold bustles and shaving mugs for a firm in Memphis. Waddingham-Smith was a man wise in the ways of the world and as soon as he saw Hortense he knew that she was wasting her time as well as his. One moonlight night he took her home from the Baptist Strawberry Social. All that night Hortense lay wide eyed on her pillow and dreamed of the wonderful things Waddingham-Smith had told her about the distant city. She craved the lights, the laughter and the fine clothes which he described in glowing terms. She was fascinated by the scoundrel's store made clothes, the Bandoline and bay rum on his hair, and the diamond stud in his cravat.

Hortense thought of Cuthbert and his simple ways. She thought of his simple ways. Then she made up her mind.

The next morning when Cuthbert had done his daily chores, he tripped blithely over to Hortense's house. His face was wreathed in smiles for he had a nest of robins for her. Sometimes in summer she would wear a nest of robins in her hair, and he knew how happy that would make her.

But alas! Hortense was gone. The new buggy was gone too. The wicked city slicker had lured her off and the tinsel and glitter of the Great White Way had claimed another innocent victim.
What is a University?

Calling a group of buildings a University doesn't make it a University.

A University must have money, men, ideals, and standards. Money for buildings, equipment, and operating expenses. Scholarly men—men whose love of learning is animated by an even greater love of God and man—for a faculty. Ideals of character and conduct which tend to develop the best in each individual student. Standards of training which insure that its students will receive what a University purports to give: instruction of the quality accepted and approved by the highest accrediting agencies.

In addition, a real University must have research facilities through which its scholars may strive to extend the boundaries of human knowledge; it must also provide extension courses through which any earnest man or woman may obtain the advantages of University training by correspondence or by afternoon and evening study.

To be a University in every sense of this definition is Emory University's purpose.
Hi-There-Wasser

Not by Longfellow

By the borders of the car-line,
Near the famous old log cabin,
Sigma Pi and politicians.
All around him were his brothers,
Frat men were they, some denied it,
Sigma Pi is but a suck-in.
Willy Lee and Prentiss Miller
Loud denied this accusation,
Showing folks the lovely Bailey,
Saying: "This is lovely Bailey,
Who will make Phi Beta Kappa
And will be great on the Campus."

Came the year of nineteen-thirty
And the Short Dog had ambitions.
Told Gard Allen his ambitions;
At the Sigma Chi house told him,
There he learned of Independents,
How to curry favor with them;
Where they keep their votes in winter;
What they do at spring elections;
When to give them tea and cigars,
Chi Phi tea and Theta cigars;
Learned their names and all their faces.
People heard of Short Dog Vinson.
Saw him talking to G. Wasser.
Saw him with the tribes of Judah.
Saw him tell the Independents

It was nice to vote All-Emory.
People laughed and said: "Old Short Dog."
People called him Wah-Wah-Tay-See;
Which in French means Hal-I-Tos-Is.

Was a maid named Pan-Hellenic,
Part the daughter of the Hebrews,
Loved and cherished by the Hebrews.
Fair she seemed to Short Dog's glances.
A. E. Pi would help him win her;
Sigma Pi at last had power.
So he wooed and won the maiden.
Won the hand of Pan-Hellenic,
President of Pan-Hellenic.
But the union was not happy.
Pan-Hellenic laughed at Short Dog.
Said: "He should be plowing corn fields,
Should be selling fish, or turnips,
Should not be here saying: 'Dog it.'"

In three months the bonds were broken.
But the braves and chiefs remembered;
Thought of Short Dog's Pan-Hellenic,
Laughed and winked and nudged each other,
While the air was filled with cheering
Of a Democratic victory.
Short Dog still had his ambitions,
Still he sneered at mighty Ajax.
Even now the people note him.
See him putting Independents.
People say: "Tis only Short Dog,
He is harmless. Do not harm him."

In the production of fine books, or for that matter, fine printing of any sort there must be an adequacy of Understanding and experience to plan and interpret. Of workers who have mastered their crafts. Of materials of the best quality. And of modern equipment and exact skill in its direction.

These sales and service offices and this manufacturing plant are evidences of an inflexible rule that adequacy must be maintained at

PRODUCERS OF FINE ANNUALS BOOKLETS CATALOGS
BRINGING forth a College Annual is not unlike the first assumption of paternity by a young father; they are both experiences that one never forgets. In both instances the original cost seems much larger and more terrifying than the upkeep, and the expectant editor-father must lay his plans carefully and find a suitable answer to the logical query, "How will you pay for the child, once you've got it?" before he can contemplate his fatherhood with the equanimity the occasion deserves. To begin with, it must be decided whether the family can stand, or wants a new addition to the family—a baby to bring happiness, laughter, and a reflection of one's self, or an Annual to bring memories, pleasant and unpleasant, and a reflection of others. Having decided in the affirmative, one must now consult with various necessary personages, a doctor-photographer, a nurse-engraver, and certain people at a hospital-printing shop. By this time the editor-father realizes that he is in for it, for there are many doctor-photographers, hordes of nurse-engravers, and scores of hospital-printing shops, none of which suffer from inferiority complexes, and all of whom want to see that the forthcoming year-book-infant is well cared for, and equally well paid for. Finally the editor-father, after many conferences with his Business Manager-Banker, decides on certain of these individuals, makes his promises, and shakes hands. But the days of decision are not yet ended. There are other people and other problems. A dress-maker-binder has to be chosen, the tiny garments must be selected, and the problem of naming the baby for someone must be settled. For a brief Halcyon time, all seems to be going well. The editor-father is lost in pleasant speculation, imagining that his child will be the smartest, the prettiest, the most attractive ever, and that he will grow up to be a fine, stalwart, respected man, who will be President maybe. But such dreams have their abrupt awakenings. The boss reduces salaries, the Student Activities Council reduces appropriations; the stock market drops, the Bank of Decatur fails with a sadly sum of Student money therein; the depression interferes with dividends, the depression interferes with the sale of advertising, and the Business Manager-Banker sits moody in corners mumbling; the markets drop again, the Phi Delta Theta House burns taling with it all the Beauty Section and half of the Fraternity copy for the year-book; the editor-father grows, gnashes his teeth wondering why he should have picked such a time to have a year-book-infant. However a fated day arrives. Having been notified by the nurse-engraver, the editor-father presents himself at the hospital-printing shop in a state of wild, nervous expectation. He stands in a corridor, outside a shut door, shifting from one foot to the other, biting his nails, waiting, waiting, almost wishing the thing would never happen. At length, a white-coated man takes him by the arm, leads him through the door, and there he sees the realization, all new, all shining, and magnificent.

We wish you were here in the arm chair across from us. Then we could tell you how really unusual our child is, and how different from those ill-bred little brats that live next door. Perhaps the more discerning among you will see resemblances to other people's children, how the nose turns up like some year-book-infant you have seen before, or how the brow is arched like some others. But we, in the pride of our creation, gazing at the year-book-infant dressed in its Sunday clothes, hair combed, shoes polished, ears washed before and behind, and are absurdly satisfied. Forgive us this, a father's vanity.

THE EDITOR.

Thank God, It's Finished.
